HITS G. O. P. REGIME
Nation's Democratic Leaders at Jefferson Rally at Capital

Washington—(AP)—Arthur O'Brien of Washington, D. C., was elected today as treasurer of the Democrats "Victory fund" organization.

He succeeds James W. Gerard, who resigned recently as treasurer of the Democratic National committee.

This was virtually the only change in the money raising organization during an executive session of the "minute men" in charge of the $1,500,000 drive.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive committee, will continue to lead the drive.

The meeting was a part of ceremonies in connection with the gathering of Democrats at the Willard hotel for a Jefferson day celebration. Shouse, chairman Raskob of the national committee, and Alfred E. Smith attended the "minute men" gathering.

Smith was the center of a concerted rush after the meeting, and answered questions of newspapermen.

"We're going to win in November," he said. When asked if he would take this stump this fall, he said it was a little too early to talk about that.

Washington—(AP)—A six-point economic relief program, including abandonment of "prohibitive" tariffs and sharp reduction in the cost of government was advanced today by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, at the Jefferson day luncheon rally of the nation's leading Democrats.

Joining Representative Rainey of Illinois, the house majority leader; Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, vice chairman of the party's national committee, in a severe arraignment of the Republican promises and policies, the senate's Democratic chief also called for:

Rigid enforcement of the anti-trust laws, use of American capital at home, a policy of non-cancellation of foreign debts and no readjustment of debts except in the interest of America, and reestablishment of higher commodities in domestic production and other processes.

All other speakers let loose original darts at the administration's tariff and relief measures, but only one—Representative Norton—took a fling at prohibition.

Urging abandonment of the prohibition bureau, she said the "noble experiment" has cost the American people $70,000,000 for enforcement, not counting the revenue "which could be had from a legalized tax on beer and wine, while the cost in murder, suicides, corruption, crime and prison and insane asylum upkeep cannot be estimated."

"No Remedy Sought"
"While all of this is developing," she added, "the leader of our country is not sufficiently interested to even attempt to discover the remedy. Men on Capitol Hill with closed minds refuse to read the evidence handed in on the mail."

Taking the "harmful results of 'new economics'" as his text, Senator Robinson termed the Hoover relief proposals as "palliative, not cures" and said financial institutions have been slow to avail them-

Washington—(AP)—Dorothy D. Deane, national commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars, told the house ways and means committee today that "perhaps 98 per cent of the rank and file of the World War veterans" are behind the bonus payment proposal.

Roosevelt And Hoover Lead In Elections

NOYES FORECASTS U. S. REGULATION OF DUCK HUNTING

Milwaukee—(AP)—Federal regulation of the bag limit on wild ducks and the length of the shooting season was predicted here today by Haskell Noyes, chairman of the state conservation commission, upon his return from a Washington meeting of the federal advisory board on migratory birds. He is a member of the board.

Noyes recommended a reduction of the bag limit from 15 to 10 birds a day and limitation of the number of shooting days to 45 with no shooting allowed after 2 p. m.

Preliminary reports from all sections of the country, he said, indicate the lack of nesting places because of drought will seriously reduce propagation of waterfowl.

Noyes said the federal migratory bird board favors, 8 to 2, a federal hunting license of $1 to finance the purchase of lands for wild life refuges.

NEW BEER PLAN IN TAX DEBATE

Senate Urged to Sanction
Manufacture of Cereal Beverage

Washington—(AP)—Beer as a source of revenue was thrust back into the tax dispute, today before the senate finance committee.

James A. Emery, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, called for amendment of the Volstead act and the regulated manufacture of a cereal beverage which he said would produce $70,000,000 annually of revenue.

"We are concerned neither with the pros nor cons of prohibition," he said. "The only issue is whether we shall have beer, with or without revenue."

"We urge the permissible manufacture of a palatable non-intoxicant, competing with an illicit beverage to produce revenue in a national emergency."

Emery appeared after Senator Harrison (D., Miss.) had accused Secretary Mills of not playing fair with the finance committee in referring it (the committee) to the original treasury revenue plan rather than submitting new proposals.

The letter by Mills to the committee said he preferred either the original treasury plan or the revenue bill as it was reported by the house ways and means committee to the measure passed by the house and now before the finance committee. He offered to go before the committee at any time to aid in changing the bill, however.

DRY AGENTS RAID NICHOLS BUILDING

Discover Brewery and Quantity of Beer, They Allege

Federal prohibition officers, headed by Clarence R. Olson, Appleton, yesterday raided the premises of Walter Toelmer, Nichols, and found a brewery and quantity of alleged beer.

Toelmer was arraigned before United States Commissioner C. B. Dillett, Shawano, and charged with operating a brewery, manufacturing and possession of beer and maintaining a nuisance. The hearing was continued to April 23 before the commissioner, and bond of $1,000 was furnished.

The alleged brewery was in an abandoned building in the village of Nichols. Equipment valued at about $5,000 was found in the plant together with eight half barrels of beer and 35 cases of filled pint bottles.

De Pere—(AP)—Albert Steffens, West De Pere, was arrested today by federal prohibition agents after a search of his home revealed nine pints of "moon." The search warrant was based on a "tip" made by undercover men. Steffens was taken to Shawano for arraignment before U. S. Commissioner C. B. Dillett.

CHIEF OF PHILIPPINE CONSTABULARY QUILTS

Manila, P. I.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Charles E. Mathorst, who reaches 70 in June, resigned today as chief of the Philippine constabulary.

He had been with the force since 1901 and its commandant since 1927. He came to the islands with the Minnesota volunteers during the Filipino insurrection and later joined the constabulary. General Mathorst is a native of Sweden. Col. Clarence Bowers was named acting commandant.

RANSOM CASH IS FOUND IN NEW YORK CITY

$20 Bill in Hands of New York Police—Suspect
Held in Ontario

Stockholm, Sweden—(AP)—Police received orders today to search the city for the kidnapped Lindbergh baby. Pictures of the missing child appeared on the front pages of all the newspapers.

Washington—(AP)—One of the twenty dollar notes paid to the Lindbergh kidnapers was reported here today to have been passed in New York city and turned over to the New York police department by the secret service.

Secret service agent, in New York city identified the bill and reported their finding to the police to enable the latter to attempt to trace the note. It was added, however, that it probably would be impossible to trace the note to its source in New York.

ARREST IN CANADA

St. Thomas, Ont.—(AP)—A man claiming to be D. D. Dickerson of New York city, was arrested here today in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping. Police said he carried letters addressed to Col. Lindbergh and Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother of Mrs. Morrow, Col. Lindbergh and Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh.

Dickerson was arrested after the night ticket agent at the Michigan Central railway station told police five letters had been left with him with instructions that they be posted by trainmen at the end of the division. The agent notified police after he noticed the letters were addressed to Mrs. Morrow, Col. Lindbergh and Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh.

Police are seeking permission from the postoffice department and from Col. Lindbergh to open the letters.

In police court today Dickerson explained he had conceived ideas about locating the kidnapped child and was merely trying to pass them on to Col. Lindbergh. The crown asked that he be remanded for a week. Meanwhile his fingerprints and photograph are being sent to Ottawa and Washington. Detroit police also were asked to investigate, as he said he had discussed his ideas to some men in that city.

NEW NEGOTIATIONS

Hope Hill, N. J.—(AP)—Dr. John F. Condon indicated today he had renewed negotiations with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, to whom he has already paid a $50,000 ransom, and police disclosed they had received a "mysterious message" telling where definite information of the baby's whereabouts might be obtained.

"I'm convinced I had contact with the kidnapers and I still have contact with them," Dr. Condon, who negotiated with the criminals through a series of advertisements signed "Jafise," said early today after a mysterious night journey.

A few hours later Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police who is in general charge of the police investigation, issued his usual morning bulletin and in it announced the latest clue.

QUICK THINKING BY PILOT AVERTS CRASH

St. Paul, Minn.—(AP)—Quick thinking on the part of Pilot M. B. Probert of the Northwest Airways, Inc., yesterday prevented the smashing of near Wabasha, Minn., of a trimotored plane carrying eight passengers and a copilot, from this city to Chicago.

One of the side motors was torn loose by vibration when a propeller snapped. It lodged against a strut, damaging the landing gear. Freeborn flew over the Mississippi river and maneuvered the plane until the motor fell into the water. Then, despite the damaged landing gear, he made a safe landing on an emergency field.

SEN. HARRIS REPORTED ON WAY TO RECOVERY

Washington—(AP)—Senator Harris of Georgia, was reported by his physician today to be "a good deal better" and to have "a good chance to get well."

The physician said the Georgia Democrat, suffering from a complication of diseases, "looks as much better today as he did worse yesterday." At that time the physician held little hope for recovery.

KILLED BY TRACTOR

Waukesha—(AP)—Run over by a tractor, Martin Kern, 45, Vernon farmer, was killed yesterday. Coroner John Schaeffer said the farmer apparently was knocked from the tractor when his head struck a beam as he backed it out of a shed.

World Court Proposal Is Voted Down

Senate Foreign Relations
Group Rejects Pittman
Resolution

Washington—(AP)—The senate foreign relations committee today rejected 11 to 8 the Pittman resolution proposing to ask for an interpretation from other signatory powers of the meaning of the Root protocol for American adherence to the world court.

Chairman Borah planned to poll the remainder of the committee but the 11 votes against the resolution were enough to defeat it.

The aim of the resolution was to determine whether the Root protocol covers a reservation adopted by the senate in 1926, under which this country claimed an interest without the approval of the United States government.

Secretary Stimson has taken the view that the Root formula completely covers the reservation.

The senators who voted for the Pittman resolution were: Borah, Johnson, LaFollette, Robinson of Indiana, Glenn, Pittman, Lewis and Shipstead.

Those opposed were: Capper, Reed, Fess, Vandenberg, Cullins, Swanson, Robinson of Arkansas, Walsh of Montana, Harrison, Wagner and Connally.

The committee reached no agreement today for a time to vote on the Root protocol itself.

The question of further hearings was discussed but no agreement was made.

EARLY DECISION IS EXPECTED OF KOHLER

Milwaukee—(AP)—The Milwaukee Journal today says it has learned authoritatively that former Gov. Walter J. Kohler will announce in a week or ten days whether he will be a candidate against Gov. Philip F. LaFollette. The Journal says that Kohler has decided the time has come to make his decision and adds that many conservative Republicans high in party councils believe he will be a candidate.

A delegation of farmers, headed by A. J. Glover, Fort Atkinson, agriculturist, will visit the village of Kohler next Tuesday to urge the former governor to return to politics.

Many details of the conservative Republican national and state campaign will be overhauled on the return tomorrow of George Vitis of Manitowoc, Republican national committeeman, who has been in Florida. George Gilkey of Merrill, has indicated that he wishes to withdraw as head of the state conservative committee.

SAYS CEMENT CONCERN CAN'T SLASH PRICES

Manitowoc—(AP)—H. W. Vandewerpe, vice president of the Manitowoc Portland Cement company, said last night that his concern could not meet the low cement price demanded by the Wisconsin Highway commission as a result of bids by the Alpha Portland Cement company of Illinois.

Another official termed the highway commission's ultimatum "outrageous" for the Wisconsin firm and said the plant here "might as well close its doors."

Yesterday, the commission said it would not buy from cement companies for the highway program this year except at a price comparable to that in Illinois, where authorities said, a price war had brought about a drastic reduction.

PLEADS FOR PARDON

Janesville—(AP)—Fred Hartin, sentenced Nov. 16, 1917, to life imprisonment for the slaying of H. A. Krause near Beloit, has applied to Governor LaFollette for a pardon. The case will be heard May 4.

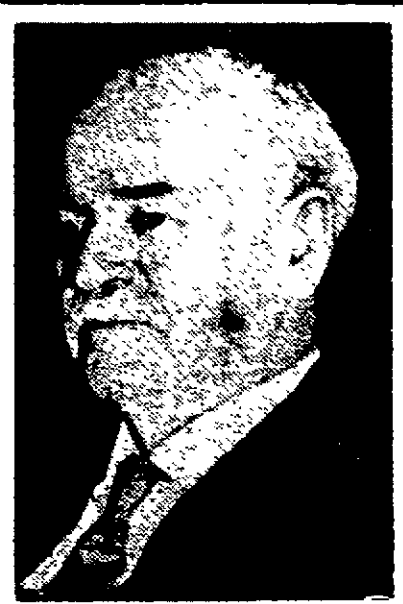

New Credit Wave Urged For Banks Of Federal Reserve

Washington—(AP)—The federal reserve system has passed along the word to member banks that they will be expected to take advantage of the loosened credit provided by the government's reconstruction program and to refrain from calling in loans and securities.

This disclosure came today at about the same time that George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank, was telling the house banking committee that the federal reserve board had agreed to stimulate the volume and rate of purchases of government securities.

The step of the federal reserve was described by the committee as a familiar work of a feeling that there had been a failure on the part of bankers to assist the government in its reconstruction program. These officials believe that Former Gov. Len Small apparently has won the Republican nomination for governor in Illinois, as the result of Tuesday's primary election.

SLAYS TWO, THEN TAKES OWN LIFE

Loss of Employment Blamed for Triple Shooting in Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(AP)—Apparently dazed by the loss of his employment, Emil J. Huebner, 42, former street car motorman, killed his mother, Alina, 84, and his wife, Gertrude, 42, yesterday, and then turned his pistol on himself.

The slayings and suicide occurred sometime in the afternoon after Huebner's daughter, Dolores, 13, had left for school.

In addition to shooting his wife and mother, Huebner had slashed their wrists with a razor, police said. Evidently the wife was killed while taking an afternoon nap.

The deaths were discovered by Mrs. Agnes Reidel, sister of the wife, who went to the Huebner cottage to discuss a dress her sister was making for her.

When no one answered her knock, Mrs. Reidel entered the house. She found the body of the older Mrs. Huebner lying on the living room floor. Upstairs she found the body of her sister, fully clothed, lying on a bed. On the floor beside the bed was Huebner's body, a pistol at his side. There were no indications of a struggle.

Friends of Huebner said that despite the loss of his employment, apparently he was not in serious financial straits. His home was paid for, they said, and they did not believe the family was in want.

He had been employed as a motorman for 12 years. Recently he was discharged, company officials said, "for infraction of rules."

The daughter, orphaned by the tragedy, said that when she came home for lunch, there was no hint of domestic differences.

DIRECTORS CAN'T PLEAD IGNORANCE ABOUT FIRM

Madison—(AP)—Individual directors of the defunct Joseph M. Boyd Co., investment firm, cannot plead ignorance of the company's affairs to escape prosecution, A. W. Kopp, special prosecutor, said in superior court yesterday as the preliminary hearing for the five directors continued.

The directors, Joseph M. Boyd, Alfred T. Rogers, Dr. C. A. Harper, Ray Farness and R. R. Kopp, are charged with embezzlement, false advertising and violation of the state securities laws. When counsel for Dr. Harper attempted to show that his client did not have full knowledge of the overseas of the Beecroft Building company's $2,600,000 bond issue, Attorney Kopp said the law requires directors to know what is going on in their company.

ILLINOIS ELECTION

Chicago—(AP)—Former Gov. Len Small and Judge Henry Horner of Chicago appeared today in the Illinois supreme court to contest the election of Governor Small to the office of governor.

Small, who was elected governor in 1930, was defeated by Governor Small in the election of 1932.

GAIN STRENGTH AS RESULT OF PRIMARY VOTES

Former Gov. Small and Judge Henry Horner
Win in Illinois

Chicago—(AP)—The bids of President Hoover and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nominations of their respective parties gained strength today on the basis of primary election returns.

In Nebraska mounting tabulations of the expression of presidential preference definitely picked the New Yorker as the man the state's 16 delegates will be morally obligated to support at the Democratic national convention this June.

Illinois, likewise surveying the outcome of yesterday's primary found Hoover inclined candidates for delegates to the national convention leading those militantly against his renomination.

And from three other states, came these expressions of political convention favor:

Kentucky pledged its entire Democratic delegation of 26 to Gov. Roosevelt.

Missouri's state of 41 Republican delegates was instructed by the state G. O. P. meeting for President Hoover.

And to the president went 13 of Florida's Republican delegates with two more remaining to be chosen. Nine of the 15 were instructed for him by the state convention and the remaining two by district meetings.

Governor Roosevelt set the pace in the Democratic preference vote in Nebraska and widened the margin he set early over Speaker John M. Garner of Texas, and Gov. William J. Murray of Oklahoma.

Test of Strength

It was the first test of strength for the three in any one primary and tabulations from 867 precincts of the state's 2,042 gave Roosevelt 28,211; Garner 11,179 and Murray 10,453.

Only the name of former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland appeared on the Republican preference ballots in Nebraska but the voters wrote President Hoover's name, and he polled 2,036 votes against 7,732 for France, in 342 precincts.

Although the gubernatorial race overshadowed national issues in the Illinois primary, convention delegates favoring President Hoover for renomination were well in the van in nine districts and those opposed to him and to prohibition led in only two.

Bernard W. Snow, Chicago Republican chairman and sponsor of a state of 16 delegates pledged against President Hoover and for a "wet" plank in the national Republican platform, was running third in the limited number of precincts reported.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis, the state's favorite son, was unopposed in the Democratic preference vote and in returns from 1,316 precincts out of 7,122, polled 157,579 votes.

Former Senator France was also the only candidate seeking the Illinois Republican expression of preference. He received 2,036 votes from 323 precincts.

BROTHERS, BLIND, DEAF, HELPLESS AS SISTER IS BURNED

Woodstock, Ill.—(AP)—There was a story of tragedy on the mail box near the home of Lizzie Furney, 63, yesterday.

Around the box was a pair of trousers and the rural mail carrier, making his regular rounds, knew it was a signal that something was wrong. Hurrying to the house he found the woman had been burned to death.

Her two brothers, both blind and deaf, sensing that she was on fire, were helpless to aid her because they could neither see nor hear, and draped the mail box with the trousers to attract attention.

Investigators said it was apparent the woman's clothing had been ignited, when she tried to start a fire in a stove.

She had been taking care of the blind brothers for years, and had learned their sign language.

CHARGES COUPLE SOLD MATE BOOZE, SUES FOR $8,000

Milwaukee—(AP)—A federal court jury today heard testimony in a damage suit in which Mrs. Fred Lemke, Fond du Lac, is seeking to collect $8,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lemke, Fond du Lac, because the couple allegedly sold her husband liquor.

Mrs. Lemke maintained that because of liquor sold her husband, he lost several jobs, and after he was reduced to trapping for muskrats in attempts to support his family, the Lemkes traded him whiskey for muskrat skins. She said and her five children were impoverished as a result.

Lemke testified at the opening of the case yesterday that since July 7, 1930, he had not touched whiskey, "but only a little beer." The Lemkes were convicted of prohibition law violations several years ago.

TIFF IN SENATE ON QUIZ DEMAND

Sharp Debate Follows Indiana Senator's Request for Investigation

Washington—(AP)—A demand in the senate today by Senator Robinson (R., Ind.), for investigation of presidential campaign expenditures, particularly of those in behalf of Governor Roosevelt of New York, stirred a sharp debate.

The Indiana Republican read a newspaper story quoting Governor Murray of Oklahoma as charging that $50,000 was sent into Nebraska for Roosevelt's primary in behalf of the Roosevelt ticket.

"This is a very serious charge and unquestionably should be investigated," he said.

He was halted by a roar of Democratic voices.

Senator Thomas (D., Okla.), broke in to state that Gov. Murray had denied the accuracy of the newspaper story quoted by Robinson in reference to the Nebraska Roosevelt campaign funds.

Robinson of Indiana asked Senator Dickinson (R., Iowa) before the Democrats broke up the speech whether he hoped for early action on his resolution directing a senate investigating of presidential and senatorial campaign funds.

Dickinson said the resolution was before the elections committee and had been delayed because of the Hefflin-Bankhead senatorial election contest before the committee. He added he hoped for early authorization of the inquiry.

Robinson of Indiana, had just begun a recital of the court action filed by P. F. Kenny in New York, alleging that not aggregating $70,000 were signed by him in 1925 upon the assurance of Democratic Chairman Raskob that the signers would never be held responsible, when the Democrats broke in.

Brooks and Hemphill were arrested following an alleged fight at the home of C. M. Morris, Des Moines, who is connected with the Post-Des Moines Army post.

When Brooks was told Hemphill had been shot, Brooks said he admitted that he had fought with Hemphill shortly before the latter was taken to a hospital suffering fatal injuries.

GERMAN POLICE SHUT QUARTERS OF NAZI UNITS

400,000 National Socialist
"Troopers" Affected
by Decree

BANNERS ARE SEIZED
Order Adds to List of Job-

ther Responsibility

Berlin—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's National Socialist "storm troops" were declared illegal throughout the country by a government decree today.

The ban affects 400,000 "Nazis" organized on military lines and referred to by their political opponents as Hitler's "Proletarian Guard" and sometimes as "the state within a state."

Chancellor Brüning considered this extraordinary action so important that he delayed his departure for the disarmament conference at Geneva a full day to deliberate its every step and consequence.

He conferred with Wilhelm Groener, minister of defense, who consulted authorities of the federated states before the decree was issued.

The material confiscated in the raids on Hitler's meeting-places last month, together with evidence found in other states, particularly in Bavaria and Hesse,

Relief Funds Hearings Planned For Madison And Superior

EXPECTED TO BE BASIS IN OTHER BADGER CITIES

Madison Hearing to Determine Payments Under Similar Conditions

Madison—(P)—Hearings at Madison next Friday and at Superior April 26 to determine how much those cities will receive from the state unemployment relief funds on the basis of their 1931 relief expenditures were announced today by A. J. Altmeier, secretary of the state industrial commission.

While a different situation obtains at Superior because Douglas county has abandoned the county poor relief system the Madison hearing is expected to set up a guide which will affect the claims on the relief funds by all cities that operate under the county system.

The city of Madison is claiming $74,000 from the state, that sum representing 25 per cent of what the city contends it spent for local relief in 1931 as measured by the labor costs on its public works job creating program. The second section of the state relief bill provides for a 25 per cent disbursement of the amounts so spent.

Altmeier said that it is up to Madison and other cities which have filed claims to establish proof that the employment furnished by its public works program took care of persons who were public charges and that the money spent was the equivalent of an expenditure for outdoor poor relief. This is in accordance with the clear language of the law, he said.

The commission's position is that all public works necessarily provide employment but that the cities claims must show that they provided in systematic manner to care for the needy. Individual hearings may be held for the other cities besides Madison but no others have been planned now.

The question to be thrashed out at Superior not only concerns the amount that city will get under the 25 per cent distribution but also whether it is entitled to an allowance from the $25,000 fund which the commission was given to distribute in cases of acute need.

The abandonment of the county relief system there means, Altmeier said, that the city must shoulder its own relief and may require an allotment from the free fund.

PLAN EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM AT MEET

Noyes Is Speaker at Gathering of Paper Mill Representatives

The history of educational work in the paper industry of Wisconsin and the United States was reviewed in an address by N. G. Noyes, financial coordinator of the industry, at a meeting of 25 paper mill representatives at Appleton vocational school Tuesday afternoon. The history covered the program since 1918, and revealed the extensive training courses which have been offered in the five fields of the industry, including management, operations, maintenance men, power workers and technical men.

He also outlined plans for continuation of the program in 1932-33 in both day and evening school classes. He recommended the readjustment of the program to meet the educational needs in the five fields, and suggested that four methods of education be inaugurated next year. They will include lectures, demonstration, rotations and discussions and conferences.

Mr. Noyes also recommended that the program be put on a short unit intensive basis during the coming two years. His recommendations were unanimously accepted by the paper mill representatives.

CHAPPEL SEES TIEUP OF RADICAL FORCES

Richland Center—(P)—John B. Chapple, Ashland editor, charged in an address here last night that appointment of Prof. Harold M. Groves as head of the University of Wisconsin state tax commission "is a fresh proof of the tieup between radical forces in the state capital and at the university." Chapple spoke at an open meeting.

He said that Groves, Governor LaFollette, Glenn Frank, president of the university, Max Otto and Alexander McKiejohn, members of the university faculty, are connected with the American Civil Liberties Union. He declared that congressional investigation showed the Civil Liberties Union "spends 90 per cent of its efforts on behalf of communists."

"The selection of Groves by Gov. LaFollette not only emphasizes the tieup between radicalism at the university and a capital but also reveals again the tieup between the LaFollette regime and organizations out of sympathy with the American order," Chapple asserted.

MINISTER OF LABOR MAPS REICH POLICY

Berlin—(P)—Germany will balance her budget first, then go ahead with the task of providing jobs for her 7,000,000 unemployed, Adam Stegerwald, minister of labor, told a convention of trade unions today.

"We must avoid another inflation and insure the stability of our currency," he said. "I am neither optimistic nor pessimistic about 1932. It may even be that unemployment will increase. Domestic improvement depends largely on the future course France and the United States, but our own domestic political situation is a factor to be considered."

Americans Start Fight For Life

Bound for the courtroom where the battle to save their lives is being staged by Clarence Darrow, the principals in the Honolulu "honor murder" trial are shown in telephoto picture above. Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., leads the way as aristocratic Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue enters the courthouse where they are being tried for the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, half-caste islander alleged to have participated in an attack on Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of the young naval officer. Mrs. Julian Ripley, a sister of Mrs. Fortescue, is shown following in the background. Mobs surround the courthouse steps to see the principals enter the tiny courtroom inside. Most of the island's white women have rallied to the defendants' support in the belief that safety of all women on the island depends on the outcome of the case. Mrs. Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, the lieutenant and two naval enlisted men are alleged to have kidnapped Kahahawai and murdered him. Picture above, first to reach the United States, was telephotoed from San Francisco to NEA Service and Post-Crescent.

IRISH LEADERS TO VISIT M'DONALD

Premier of Northern Ireland Not Seriously Alarmed by Situation

London—(P)—The unexpected arrival of Viscount Craigavon, premier of northern Ireland and Attorney General A. B. Babinington, created increased interest in the Irish situation here today.

Viscount Craigavon said although the situation was delicate he did not take a serious view of it. He said he hoped to see Prime Minister MacDonald, and J. H. Thomas, dominions secretary, during his visit.

It was widely believed the viscount's visit was in connection with expressions of alarm in northern Ireland over one sentence in the most recent British note to President de Valera.

The sentence read: "As to the future, his majesty's government feels it sufficient to state that in its opinion there can be no conceivable hope for establishment of a united Ireland except on the basis that its allegiance to the crown and its membership in the British commonwealth will continue unimpaired."

Viscount Craigavon was asked whether this implied that the imperial government might consider placing a united Ireland in certain circumstances. He replied that nothing had changed the attitude of northern Ireland with respect to its loyalty to Great Britain.

In official circles today it was said that there had been no suggestion for any change in the position of northern Ireland nor for using Ulster as an instrument in the negotiations between the British and the Free State government.

ANDERSON FAVORS MODIFICATION BUT NOT LAW'S REPEAL

Richmond, Va.—(P)—Col. Henry W. Anderson still believes that modification of the 18th amendment is the best solution of the liquor problem, but he will not support attempts to repeal the dry laws. Speaking to the Republican club of Richmond last night, Mr. Anderson, who as a member of the Wisconsin committee had urged modification of the liquor law, said he could be classified neither as a wet nor a dry. Instead he claimed to be only an American citizen who desires to see this problem solved by constructive methods which will reduce the use of intoxicating liquors to a minimum, take from the criminal element of the country one of their chief sources of income, and promote the social and economic welfare of this nation.

"Whatever revision is made, if any," he said, must preserve "the advantages already gained" under the 18th amendment. "Prohibition against the return of the saloon, locally or nationally, must be insured," he asserted.

He proposed that the state have "a maximum of discretion" in the liquor trade "consistent with effective regulation." He pointed out that federal regulation would be needed to control the flow of liquor into this country as well as the flow of liquor across state lines.

Saying that repeal of the 18th amendment "would leave us in a condition of social chaos," Col. Anderson asserted that "a revision of the amendment and laws... would be a progressive and constructive treatment of this important problem."

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

THE MIND OF THE NATION

To read the Congressional Record with even moderate diligence is a not inconsiderable punishment, for on an ordinary day our legislators have no difficulty in producing up to two hundred columns of print. Now, of course, even the most conscientious student of affairs is not required to read every word of all this. He can skip a good many things. Nevertheless, the Congressional Record is worth the trouble for it is the only central place where the diverse opinions of the American people are brought to gether.

At no time within recent memory has this been more true than it is now. For since the breakdown of party discipline Congress has become an open forum, and while any one is at liberty to doubt whether Congress is representing the national interest effectively, there can hardly be any doubt that it is reflecting accurately the conflicting sentiments of the people.

It is, of course, clear that the important division of opinion is not between Republicans and Democrats but between conservatives and progressives. It is not less clear, I think, that what divides the two groups is a difference of feeling toward the established financial and industrial powers: the conservatives feel that the country must work with and through the existing powers to set the economic machine running again, the progressive feeling is that the existing powers have forfeited the right to the confidence of the country by failing to avert the breakdown of the economic machine.

It was to this progressive feeling that Governor Roosevelt was appealing when he said the other night that the Hoover Administration "can think in terms only of the top of the social and economic structure" and that it had forgotten or did not wish to remember "the infancy of our economic army."

The reminder of "The New York Times" in asking him whether he had seen "an infancy" which did not need commanders reflects the conservative feeling. The essential difference is over the question of confidence in the existing commanders.

In proposing measures to meet the immediate emergencies of the crisis the initiative has lain with the conservatives. It is they who have brought forward the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It is they who worked out the Glass-Steagall bill. It is they who have insisted that a balanced budget in the government was the basis of an expansion of credit in private industry. The progressives have had no agreed program to deal with the immediate emergency. They have had a program to relieve suffering though even here they have been divided. Thus Governor Roosevelt has described the proposals to produce an inflation by great bond issues devoted to public works as an example of "the habit of the unthinking to turn in times like these to illusions of economic magic."

The attention of the progressives is not centered upon the emergency but upon reforms designed to correct the causes which have produced it. Thus they are either skeptical or hostile as to measures to arrest the deflation of values and to stabilize credit. They are greatly concerned with measures which would in the future prevent the frenzied finance of the boom and

SLANDER TRIAL IS BEGUN IN OSHKOSH

Testimony Centers in Attacks on Methods of City Administration

Oshkosh—(P)—Testimony at the criminal slander trial of R. N. Senn, editor of the weekly, "Square Dealer," centered yesterday in attacks on methods of the city administration. Senn is accused by C. M. Genal, trucking contractor.

Most of the evidence concerned the methods used by the city council in handling construction of a breakwater in Lake Winnebago. The defense attempted to show that the authorities permitted Genal to handle much trucking work on the project in blocks of work at $495, thereby eluding the statute which requires that jobs of $500 or more be let through bids.

Councilman George F. Oaks said the procedure was against advice of the city attorney, Mayor T. G. Brown testified the council had followed the plan to speed work and to aid the local unemployment situation.

Oaks and the mayor said they had been approached for financial aid for the paper. Brown said C. E. Eldred, advertising solicitor for the paper, had intimated that unless aid were given, several affidavits might be published.

Paul Redemann, stockholder of the Genal Contracting company, said Eldred had approached him for financial aid, promising that no more articles attacking the trucking business would be published if the aid were given.

and will provide the subject matter of the public life for a long time to come.

No conceivable good can come from progressive sabotage or slipping at the only immediate measures in sight to stabilize credit and restore confidence. On the other hand no good can come from a conservative attitude of contempt and resistance in the face of the incalculable but profound sentiment that serious changes are needed in the control of affairs. The lessons of history are worth remembering at a time like this, and no lesson is so clear as that a social order is almost never imperilled until conservatism has become insensitive, inflexible and sterile.

If only the progressives could remember the emergency, if only the conservatives could realize that the decade of the Twenties is dead and discredited, this nation could find unity and with unity the confidence and courage which it so greatly needs.

"JAFSIE" SAYS HE'S IN TOUCH WITH KIDNAPERS

Dr. Condon, Lindbergh Emissary, Says New Negotiations Under Way

Hopewell, N. J.—(P)—"Jafsie" says he is in touch with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby in a renewed effort to place the tot's arms "around his mother's neck."

Back from a mysterious night journey, Dr. John F. Condon, aged educator, indicated new negotiations are under way to get stolen Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., from persons who took $50,000 ransom and then ran out on their promise to restore the baby.

A bid to reinforce his assurance to the kidnapers that they need fear no harm in negotiating with him was seen in a statement by the 72-year-old retired teacher as he stood, worn and sleepless, on his porch in the Bronx, New York city.

"I'm convinced I had contact with the kidnapers and I still have contact with them," he said. "I have never identified them or said a word against them. My life would not be worth anything if I said anything against them."

Dr. Condon's trip and announcement came after he appealed once more to the kidnapers not to double cross him. In a renewal of the last of a series of newspaper advertisements signed "Jafsie," he reiterated:

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please, better directions."

The Condon development competed for interest with reports from London that the ransom money has turned up there, and rumors, twice scouted, but persistent here and in Trenton, that Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh is critically ill from worry.

Report Money in London

In London the Daily Mail said Scotland Yard swung into action after learning some of the banknotes had been changed there. Detectives here began to puzzle over how they could have got there. The money was paid out about 7 p. m. April 2. The liner Scythia sailed from New York about 11 a. m. that day, touching at Boston, from which it departed April 3 for England. Investigators thought it conceivable that the money might have been speeded from New York to Boston, and taken aboard the boat.

State police, taking cognizance again today of reports about Mrs. Lindbergh, said there had been no "perceptible change" in her condition in the last few weeks. Earlier they denied a report she had collapsed. Mrs. Lindbergh is expected to receive another message. Other messages came and on April 2 Col. Lindbergh and Dr. Condon drove to St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx, where the doctor turned over a box containing $50,000 to a man behind a hedge. The man talked with a foreign accent, it was learned.

The Atlantic City Press said that on the date of the Truckee meeting a strange motor yacht was seen proceeding from Great Egg harbor up the Truckee river. It was on a small yacht off Martha's vineyard that the man who got the $50,000 said the baby would be found, the Bronx paper said.

Henry Breckinridge, who is Lindbergh's closest adviser.

The Bronx Home News, community paper in which Dr. Condon first appealed to the kidnapers, published more details describing the payment of ransom. Before it was paid, the paper said, a mysterious woman approached Dr. Condon in a rummage shop and said "meet me in the depot at Tuckahoe, N. J., on Wednesday at 5 p. m."

Dr. Condon kept the appointment, but the woman merely told him he was a messenger and on April 2 Col. Lindbergh and Dr. Condon drove to St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx, where the doctor turned over a box containing $50,000 to a man behind a hedge. The man talked with a foreign accent, it was learned.

Michigan Democrats In Pre-Primary Convention

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(P)—Michigan Democrats gathered here today in a pre-primary convention to endorse a slate of candidates for high state offices. Their avowed belief that this will be a Democratic year attracted an unusually large number of delegates. The wet and dry issue promised a platform conflict.

The Democrats planned to concentrate upon putting an outstanding group of gubernatorial candidates in the field. However, several of the best known figures in Democratic circles were shying away from the contest.

One maneuver proposed to "draft" either John W. Miner, state prison commissioner, or Arthur Lacey, Detroit attorney, or both. Meyer and Lacey recently announced they do not care to run for governor. Some of their friends believe they might consent should the pre-primary convention delegates voice a sincere enough demand. Another was directed toward including Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, who also has stated he is not a candidate, to accept an endorsement.

Claude Carney of Kalamazoo, was the only announced candidate.

An evidently well organized boom for William A. Comstock of Detroit, former national committeeman has developed. Comstock is a veteran of many gubernatorial campaigns.

Another name which was frequently mentioned was that of William H. Loutit of Grand Haven, executive chairman of the state conservation commission. Edmund C. Shields, Lansing attorney, and Frank D. Eamon of Detroit, are other gubernatorial possibilities.

"Victory dinner" will be held to-night with Senator Thomas F. Gore as the guest of honor.

BUSINESS MAY HAVE TO PAY FOR SERVICES

House Economy Committee Expected to Draw Plan for Charging Fees

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1932, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington — If American business special services from the government of the United States, it may have to pay directly for them. If the American farmer wants year-books and publications and data, he too may have to pay a fee for each service rendered.

This is the principle which lies back of one of the recommendations made by the house economy committee after the conference last Saturday at the White House. Authority was given to the committee to draw up a plan for the charging of fees. This is a far-reaching source of revenue which the federal government has hitherto hardly tapped.

Nor long ago the head of an important industrial corporation launched an attack on the department of commerce, claiming that it ought to be abolished or words to that effect. He was criticizing useless bureaus. This was in line with the general attack that has been visited upon government departments recently in various chambers of commerce meetings and public gatherings. Immediately after this speech was delivered, one of the officials of the department of commerce looked up the record and found that the particular corporation in question had sent more than one thousand inquiries to the department of commerce during the preceding twelve months and that several of these inquiries had resulted in business amounting to many thousands of dollars.

Little Appreciation
It is not believed that the head of the corporation knew of the free services being rendered to the various departments and branches of his own business when he made the public statement. The facts have been placed before a congressional committee as an indication of how useful the various departments of the government have been to American business and how little appreciation there has been on the part of some corporations now aiding in the movement to abolish bureaus.

Now it is being suggested that whenever business comes on the department for aid, some fee be charged, possibly not to exceed $5 an inquiry. It is estimated that approximately 80,000 inquiries a week come to the department of commerce, particularly to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. If $5 per inquiry were charged, there would accrue at the end of the year approximately $20,000,000 in revenue. This entire cost of the department of commerce, with the exception of the appropriations for light-houses and aeronautics, amounts approximately to $23,000,000.

May Bring New Plan
This has raised the interesting question of government fees for all sorts of services and it probably will mean a reclassification of various departments and bureaus of the government to determine whether many of them could not be put on a self-supporting basis. Thus, the patent office already is practically self-supporting. It takes in fees every year of approximately $5,000,000 and that is about what it costs to maintain the office with all the examiners and clerks. The consular service now has approximately $5,000,000 in fees, while the passport bureau brings in close to $2,000,000 each year.

The total fees received by the federal government amounted to $17,000,000 in 1929 and it is believed they would reach higher figures if any government stimulus were applied. Approximately $10,000,000 was received in 1929 from fines and penalties. These items total $27,000,000 a year which are usually blended with miscellaneous receipts.

But it is in the field of fees and special charges that the department of revenue might be obtained by the federal government. Thus, the department of agriculture gives away annually many tens of thousands of yearbooks. These cost the government a good deal of money but they are given away free.

Slash Free List
Much literature that is printed would probably bring in a huge return if the government were to put all the publications on a paying basis. This would mean charging a few cents for some of them and virtually eliminating the free list.

The present method is for the government printing office to charge merely the cost of printing and paper. If a large edition of a particular book is issued so that the original composition cost has been covered by the first issue, then the extra copies are also put out at cost. There is no effort on the part of the government printing office to make money, because the congress has never permitted it to do so. No charges are made for the editorial cost of government publications or the cost of gathering information. A vast business in government publications might be done if the congress altered its policies.

The government has never felt that it needed to obtain more revenue from its sources and in recent months there has been a widespread agitation against government waste, particularly in the printing of literature. Much of this literature is considered necessary and many of the reports would have to be printed anyhow. The extra copies are therefore a by-product. If the public wants to buy these copies, Uncle Sam would be the beneficiary.

The plan now under consideration involves no precedent because the fee system has already been introduced in various branches of the government, but its application to many services such as those rendered by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is rather novel. Congress probably would have no objection to seeing bureaus placed on a self-supporting basis. The chief purpose of congress at present is to reduce expenses and to balance the budget.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

HARDBOILED SPORTSMAN

When a sudden, life-and-death crisis comes, you don't decide how you are going to meet it. What you are decides for you—the things you've done in past years, the dreams you've dreamed, the kind of person you've permitted or persuaded yourself to become. You run true to form, and you can't help yourself.

This theme runs through "Iturbi's Hour," a crisp and cleverly-handled novel by Joanna Casman. The central character is Sir Clement Vyse, one of those cold-water-bath English sportsmen. He sets out to scale a lonely peak in the Himalayas, taking with him his son and half a dozen kindred spirits, and finds it a tougher job than he had expected.

But Sir Clement had been one of Britain's empire builders in his youth, and he'd never been able to forget it. The one thing he really believed in was the virtue of doing exactly what he set out to do, regardless of the cost.

So in the end, he scaled the mountain and came back to England a famous explorer. But he had to commit two murders in order to do it.

The bland, self-satisfied way in which he blew himself to these murders in described with incisive irony, and their effect on Sir Clement's son, who is a much more civilized human being, is told sympathetically and persuasively. All in all, the book is very good reading.

"Iturbi's Hour" is published by Doubleday, Doran and Co., and is priced at $2.50.

STATES RED CROSS NEEDS BIGGER ROLL

Increasing Financial Support Necessary to Meet New Demands

Washington — (AP) — With relief demands upon it continually increasing, the need of the Red Cross for a greater membership to carry forward its humanitarian service was stressed today at its annual convention.

James K. McClintock, vice chairman in charge of finance, said the people have come to expect of the Red Cross instant and effective action, and to meet the need, increasing financial support is necessary. He said the central committee believed a reasonable increase in the endowment fund as a guarantee of a permanent and continuous organization and a larger membership were necessary.

Harold G. Campbell, associated superintendent of schools, New York city, in another address, praised the work of the Junior Red Cross in the American public schools. In New York, he said, "it is among the greatest of our civic activities, and we feel it is one of the vital elements in our character education program."

HELEN ORNSTEIN FOUND RISE RAPID IN MUSICAL WORLD

She Has Rare Combination of Lovely Voice, Physical Beauty

Miss Helen Ornstein, who will appear in Appleton Monday, April 23, under the auspices of Appleton Woman's club, has the rare combination of physical beauty, dramatic ability, and a lovely voice which makes for popularity on the operatic stage. One of the reasons why opera is not extremely popular is the fact that often a beautiful voice is all that the performer has to offer, but Miss Ornstein has not this difficulty to overcome.

The history of her rise to a place of prominence in the music world is remarkable. From the beginning, critics in the Musical Courier and other music journals have accredited her with an unusual voice, but it took seven years of hard work and careful study before her chance came.

Chosen In Contest
Samuel Insull has long felt that American opera should be interpreted by American talent. At his suggestion a contest was announced which was to discover such talent. Miss Ornstein's plans for European study had just been completed. Her ticket was bought and her steamer trunk packed when the papers announced Mr. Insull's contest. On the advice of her teacher and friends, she cancelled her passage, unpacked her trunk and made plans to enter the contest.

The entrants were expected to know three complete operas for the tryouts. Miss Ornstein knew none, but she set about mastering them. In learning an opera, there are three distinct tasks to be accomplished. First, the language must be mastered and the story absorbed; second, the music must be memorized, and finally the action and dramatic interpretations must be worked out.

When the day for the tryouts came, Miss Ornstein was one of 42 aspirants. She was chosen, with five others, for the finals, and a few days later was elected to go abroad for a year's study in Milan. At the expiration of that year her scholarship was renewed and she sailed on for a brilliant debut in Milan.

Critics Praise Her
In speaking of her small part in "La Traviata," Rene Devries, critic for the Musical Courier, said, "Helen Ornstein, who sang the small role of Annina, made it more prominent than any of her predecessors. Excellent is the only word we can find in our vocabulary to praise Helen Ornstein."

Again, in writing of the role of Frederic in "Mignon," Devries said: "Helen Ornstein wore the trappings of Frederic with the nonchalance of a college boy and sang the music delightfully." In speaking of her rendition of the part of the shepherdess The Musical Leader said, "Helen Ornstein in the part of the shepherdess displayed an unusually fine contralto voice—one of exquisite quality, evenness, and brilliance."

Glenn Dillard Gunn in the Chicago Herald and Examiner said: "It is a pleasant duty to add an especially hearty cheer for Miss Helen Ornstein who was the precociously efficient and altogether charming Suzuki (Madame Butterfly). Last night she proved how well deserved was the prize and to what good purpose she spent her time in Milan. Her voice is one of those rich, rare, and natural contraltos. The tone is smooth and effortless and the volume ample. She is musical. She is exceedingly good to look upon—a spontaneous and graceful actress. Her share of the duet in the second act was a perfect foil for the song of the great Pampalini."

SALES VOLUME was down! Profit margin had shrunk! Conditions in the jobbing trade demanded that every overhead item be slashed. Plans for such reductions went well until the officers took up "Fire Insurance." Apparently nothing could be done. They were paying standard rates—full coverage was needed.

Then the secretary showed them the prospectus which a Mill Owners Mutual representative had presented for his consideration. He pointed out that they could save $455.00 in premiums each year, and obtain equal coverage with complete safety. The agent was called in to explain how and why; and another select risk was added to the Mill Owners roster.

For 57 years this Company has accepted select risks only, and provided its policyholders with a regular Property Inspection and Fire Prevention Service. As a result, its yearly fire losses have been kept at a minimum. This, together with sound, mutual management, has been responsible for its unusual savings which have been 25% and 30% each year for twenty-five years.

Neenah And Menasha Granted Separate Airmail Pouch Service

NEW SCHEDULE IS EFFECTIVE NEXT FRIDAY

Decision of Postal Department Eliminates Old Star Route

Separate pouch service from Neenah and Menasha to the Whiting airport has been promised by the United States postoffice department, effective Friday, following long negotiations resulting in the discontinuance of the present star route service from Neenah and Menasha to Appleton. It was announced this morning.

The new schedule will mean the saving of about a half hour's time from Neenah and Menasha to the airport, according to postmasters of those cities. Heretofore airmail closed at 3:30 in the afternoon for southern delivery, but starting Friday it will close at 4 o'clock.

The change also means that the names of Neenah and Menasha will appear on all new airmail maps published in the future. Under the discontinued service airmail from Neenah and Menasha is sent to Appleton where it is consolidated with the Appleton mail and then sent to the airport. Mail from these two cities dropped at the airport also was brought to Appleton before being taken to the twin cities. J. P. Clement, Appleton, had the contract to carry the star route.

Stained throughout the city have coordinated with Indian utensils. Bows, arrows, blankets and Oneida Indian war bonnets were among the exhibits.

Today the setting was early American, stressing antiques and what modern pieces of furniture may be fashioned of old pieces.

Mr. Penney's original invested capital was $500, which, together with his unsecured note for $1500, bought for him a one-third interest in the one room shop operated under the name "Golden Rule Store."

Early spread was close to Kemmerer and was largely in the state of Utah, Colorado and Idaho.

In 1907, Mr. Penney acquired full ownership of three stores and immediately set his avowed plan of operation into effect.

Each original dollar of the $500 Mr. Penney put into the project thirty years ago turned over $75,000 times last year. In the first ten years, between 1902 and 1912, store units increased to 34 as men were attracted by the promise of partnership and new and efficient managerial material was developed. Total sales at the close of 1912, for the year, were slightly over $2,000,000.

In 1914, Earl Corder Sams, one of the first men to start working with Mr. Penney in Kemmerer, was chosen President to succeed the founder who wanted to pass the reins over to other hands than his own. Under Mr. Sams' direction the moves in expansion went on rapidly, and at the end of the first twenty years in business, total sales for 1922 were more than $49,000,000 and there were 371 stores carrying the name of the Company. Between 1922 and 1927, which marked the twenty-fifth anniversary year, stores had increased to 885 and sales for 1927 were $150,000,000.

In 1931 sales were close to $180,000,000 and the organization had undisputedly won its position as the largest single distributor of dry goods, clothing, and footwear, directly over the counter.

CONTINUE HEARINGS IN WORKERS' CASES

Testimony Taken in Case Where Workman Suffered Eye Injury

Testimony in the case of John H. Smith, 213 W. Winnebago-st. against the Dickman Construction company, Klet, was taken before an examiner for the Wisconsin Industrial Commission Wednesday morning. Mr. Smith claims compensation for an eye injury received Dec. 15, 1931, while he was working for the Klet firm.

In another case heard this morning John P. Pila asked compensation for an injury to his foot received Oct. 3, 1931 while employed by the George Banta Publishing company. He claims that a 400-pound case fell upon his foot.

In the case of Ignatius Murphy against Frank Murphy, both of route 6, Appleton, heard this afternoon, the claimant seeks compensation for an injury to his stomach and side received when he slipped while winding a dragline. The skin infection case of William Ketchen against Irving Zuehlke was settled, and testimony was taken in the case of Francis McHugh against the Kimberly Clark company. Mr. McHugh attributes a case of pneumonia to exposure while working for the corporation.

LAWRENCE STUDENTS RETURN TO CLASSES

Lawrence college students resumed their class work this morning after a five-day vacation. Eight weeks of regular classes remain and a full calendar of social events as well as regular academic work awaits the student body. Some of the highlights of the program for the remainder of the school year are the first recruiting program to be entirely under the supervision of the students on the weekend of May 7, the second annual water pageant to be presented by women students on May 4 and 5, the Pan Hellenic formal ball on May 21, and a series of formal parties to be held by the various fraternities. The climax of the school year will take place on June 12, when the annual commencement exercises are held in the Lawrence Memorial chapel.

Small Back In Limelight As He Nears 70th Birthday

Chicago—(P)—Len Small, nearing the end of man's three score and ten, has broken down the first barrier to the pinnacle no one has reached: three times governor of Illinois.

And with Small once again, in the return to Republican power, was William Hale Thompson, thrice Chicago's mayor.

Return from two-thirds of the state indicated the Kankekee farmer-banker would have a plurality of at least $5,000 over his nearest opponent, Omer N. Custer, former state treasurer.

Next November, Small's final foe will be Probate Judge Henry Horner of Chicago. Backed by Mayor Anton J. Cermak, and the county Democratic organization, Horner smothered National Committeeman Michael Igoe in the party's greatest outpouring of voters.

Like all of Small's battles, the primary campaign this spring was bitterly partisan. Five party leaders sought the top. The incumbent Republican governor, Louis L. Emmerson, who defeated Small on the April 1923 primary, did not seek a second term.

ABRAMS IS SPEAKER AT T. A. P. P. I. MEET

National President Reviews History of Trade Organization

History of the Technical Association of the American Pulp and Paper Industry, and a technical discussion of recent trends in paper machines and equipment, were discussed last night at a meeting of the Lake States section at Conway hotel. About 125 pulp and paper men from the great lakes region attended the meeting. Dr. Otto Kress of Lawrence college Paper Institute, chairman of the section, presided.

Allen Abrams, of the Marathon Paper Mills, Rothschild, president of Tappi, as the association is known, reviewed the origin and history. In 1915 there were 207 members and in 1931 membership figures were over 1,400.

Mr. Abrams also discussed the various committees of the association, their function, stressed the value of the organization in solving mill problems and how these questions are circulated to members who answer in the light of their experiences.

P. M. Foster of the Beloit Iron Works, Beloit, discussed Recent Trends in the Design of Paper Machines and Equipment. The developments in the last year or so have not been revolutionary in any sense of the word, but have come about by reason of the necessity for machinery and equipment better adapted to modern paper manufacturing demands.

Mr. Foster's talk was supplemented with slides and motion pictures of the various machine parts.

The Lake States section is making plans for a party on May 19, probably at the North Shore Country club. According to tentative plans the party will get underway with a program in the afternoon, followed by a dinner at 6:30 in the evening. Plans for an evening program have not yet been arranged.

6-POINT PLAN IS OUTLINED BY ROBINSON

Would Abandon 'Prohibitive' Tariffs and Reduce U. S. Costs

self of the privileges afforded by the "Glass-Steagall act, a Democratic measure," due to "fear which seems to have paralyzed the brains of those who control the sources of credit."

After saying a "nation-wide propaganda (in 1928) built up the myth that a letter mailed anywhere to the 'miracle man' would be promptly delivered to Mr. Hoover," the Arkansas senator, vice presidential nominee in that campaign, said every policy advanced by the president then "is now generally regarded as unsound, and by many regarded as a direct cause of the depression."

"Everything that Mr. Hoover said would happen is to occur," he continued. "Everything that he promised would not occur has taken place."

"When the Democrats cried out that the Hoover plan to increase mass and automatic machine production threatened to create unmanageable surpluses and to diminish employment, the Republican presidential nominee replied at Newark: 'It is the road to abolition of poverty.'"

Factors In Slump

The record of the last three years," he said, "establishes the conclusion that the economic policy of the United States as reflected in extravagant government expenditures, in loans to bankrupt foreign governments, and in the enactment of tariffs which have well-nigh destroyed our commerce, have been the controlling factors in producing depression in this country, and in causing it to extend to other spheres. 'The new economics' must be cast into the limbo of exploded heresies."

Taking up his six recommendations one by one, Robinson said: "Loans to foreign governments, or to the reduction of which repayment is promised only in the theory that the United States will, in some mysterious way, build up the ability of the borrowers to pay, should not be sought or accepted. It is better to use American capital at home and escape the risks of loss and of political entanglements and complications which must result from such a stupid policy."

"Second, this government should announce a firm purpose not to cancel or reduce obligations due from foreign countries except upon conditions manifestly to the interest of our people."

"Third, it must be made to appear that the policy of isolation reflected in prohibitive tariffs is to be abandoned, and fair reciprocal tariff arrangements entered into with a view to breaking down and preventing retaliatory measures by other peoples."

"Fourth, laws for the prevention and regulation of monopolies must be enforced. The administrations of Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover have been marked by such feebleness in the enforcement of anti-trust laws as to justify the belief that the statutes are regarded as obsolete and unnecessary."

Must Slash Costs

"Fifth, reduction of the high cost of government is among the most difficult tasks which the Democratic party will inherit when the administration of President Hoover dies on March 4, 1933. The current annual deficit is approximately $2,000,000,000. This marked divergence between revenues and expenditures threatens the national credit. That credit must be maintained."

Two general processes suggest themselves as practical ways for balancing the budget. First, the abolition of departments, bureaus, boards, commissions and offices so as to discontinue duplications in service and activities which may be dispensed with.

"The Democratic house and Democratic senators already are grappling with this problem and are making headway, and cooperation of all parties will be required. Additional taxes must be levied. Increased taxation is no remedy for depression. It is the penalty which must be paid for extravagance during prosperous times."

"Sixth, the unparalleled decline in commodity prices, a process which is accelerated by the 'new economics' if it did not originate therein, is perhaps the most difficult obstacle to surmount in attempting to overcome depression."

"Readjustment must come in domestic production and in commerce before commodity prices will substantially advance. Instead of piling up additional surpluses, existing surpluses must be disposed of in accordance with orderly processes. That is, new domestic markets must be stimulated and foreign markets reached by receiving on more liberal terms these products of foreign countries which can not be economically produced in this country."

Would Lower Tariffs

Representative Rainey said congress had passed a Democratic measure to lower tariff barriers "by resorting to international economic conventions."

"It probably will be vetoed by the president," he said, "but it is the only way by which we can now accomplish a lowering of world tariffs. 'The dangers which confront us are not imaginary,' he continued. 'They are real. No restoration of confidence can compensate for the world trade we have lost. We must get it back in some way. We must again bring back American capital to our shores and we must manufacture here in mass production and with trained American personnel again for world markets.'"

Mrs. Ross, a former governor of Wyoming, said the "electorate will be alert to evidence that there is re-

HAREFOOT SHOW IS INTERESTING AND ENTERTAINING

34th Annual Production, "Lucky Breaks," Up to Usual High Standard

BY JONAH-THIE-CORONER

To people who may have been worrying about moral conditions at our state university, "Lucky Breaks," the annual Harefoot show, presented last night at the Brin theatre, Menasha, must have been a relief. It was probably the cleanest-minded show we have seen in well nigh seven years, children. In spite of that, though, the revue was a lot of fun.

Harefoot reviews could almost be written with a rubber stamp. Each Harefoot show has something the show of the year before didn't have. Each lacks something which was present a season ago. The 34th Harefoot show takes its place with the high quality performances which Bill Purnell and his gang at Madison have been turning out for years. (At least this year we didn't have to buy our own ticket.)

If you saw a program, you noticed that Appleton's contribution to the field of college musical comedy, Mark Catlin Jr., was werra, werra frequently used. Nature never gave Mark a remarkable singing voice (and we know a couple more she neglected) but the lad can dance, he looks swell, and he helped to make the show a success.

Which brings us around to the music. It was tuneful, comparatively original and well handled. The orchestra though, was a lot better in its overtures than when assisting the show itself.

If anything, the show was a bit too collegiate. That is, we mean, for its audience. Down in Madison, they'll panic 'em with the stuff which just got laughs in Menasha.

On the other hand, sketches which got away from the college background were received enthusiastically by the crowd. (Which group—for the evening show—occupied about every seat in the place.)

Best liked among the sketches was "Tune in," a radio travesty. The boys were clever, they got across in a large way. Certain radio programs, took a rather strenuous, clever planning. "Mrs. Litnagle," a woman's club lecturer was the best Harefoot female impersonator in the last several years.

The smoothest of the chorus numbers was the "Dance of the French Pierrot Dolls." The audience was warned, however, that this scene deserved the biggest hand. It got it.

Such A Waste!

The Harefoot magician who pulled lighted cigarettes out of the air, his pocket, the curtain, the floor and whatever was convenient, was pleasing for a while, but he almost pulled too many cigarettes. People began to want to go out for a smoke. Others wanted to know how he did it. After all, a man who can get cigarettes out of thin air is to be envied these days.

There were a lot more good skits, a lot of swell dancing, much good humor and some boys who looked exceptionally well as girls. But this review was written after the show last night and your reviewer was getting sleepy. If anyone is interested in knowing what the other skits were, our program goes to the first person sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Oh yes, we almost forgot. The opening number of the second act—a north pole affair was supposed to be good. We can't tell for sure because the credit department had asked us to pick up the check for Harefoot advertising and we were up in the manager's office at about that time. Since we are not a very mercenary fellow, the idea of missing part of the show just to get a check seemed very unpleasant.

WARMER WEATHER TO CONTINUE THURSDAY

Skies will be cloudy and the mercury will continue to rise tonight and Thursday, according to the weather bureau. Weathermen's predictions have been forecast throughout the midwest for the next 24 hours, and snow will probably fall in the upper lake regions.

Spring weather returned to Appleton after a 24 hour cold blast, and Wednesday noon the mercury registered 45 degrees above zero. At 6 o'clock this morning it registered 32 degrees above. Winds are shifting in the northwest.

Let under a Democratic administration from the injustices of the Smoot-Hawley act."

She also promised the Democratic party would "attack with courage, honesty of purpose, and vigor, the farm problem."

In her assault on Republican "extravagance," Mrs. Norton said the commerce department expenditures had jumped from thirty to sixty million dollars from 1921 to 1931. She urged abolition of the department's bureau of foreign and domestic commerce which she termed "Mr. Hoover's fair-haired child."

home county, had a commanding advantage of 121,000 votes over his nearest rival, State Rep. Michael L. Igoe, with 3,361 precincts counted.

The Republican governorship vote in 4,405 precincts gave Small 258,148; Omer N. Custer, Galesburg publisher, 204,790; Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom 153,532; Wm. H. Malone, 67,002; and former Attorney General Edward J. Brundage 26,879.

On the Democratic side, the 3,361 precincts counted Horner's total at 287,750 to Igoe's 166,417 and 35,783 for Bruce Campbell of Belleville. The Democratic returns included those of 1,041 downstate precincts with Campbell leading and Igoe holding second place in that section.

Custer, who was supported in the primary campaign by Gov. Louis L. Emerson last night conceded Small's victory when less than half of the returns were counted.

Available figures indicated also that Sen. Otis F. Glenn, Republican incumbent, who ran away from his opposition in his party's primary, would have as his Democratic opponent next November, William H. Dietrich, present congressman-at-large.

Prospects for a split delegation to the Republican national convention were visualized by leaders on the basis of a victory for Small. Former Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, one of Small's leading backers, is avowedly hostile to the re-nomination of President Hoover and it was regarded as possible that the small organization might attempt naming the 11 delegates-at-large at the state convention, soon to be held. The 50 district Republican delegates chosen yesterday were for the most part pledged to Hoover. The Democratic convention delegates are for Sen. James Hamilton Lewis.

Senator Lewis with 1,549 precincts included, received 147,086 votes in the state's advisory presidential preference voting. Former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland, sole entry for the Republican presidential preference vote, received 26,952 votes in 738 precincts.

DEFICIT OVER TWO BILLION

Highest Ever Piled Up by Government During Peace Times

Washington — (AP)—The government's deficit went above the two billion dollar mark on April 11 when it amounted to $2,417,555,745. On that date the government had collected from all sources $1,829,951,527 and had spent $5,247,529,272.

In the general fund the government had a deficit of $1,985,233,555, having collected $1,607,726,897 since last July 1 and sent $3,593,960,482. Income tax collections accounted for the major item of decrease, amounting to $859,523,359 compared with $1,511,704,272 in the same period last year.

Miscellaneous internal revenue declined $45,000,000 and customs duties were down $23,000,000.

Expenditures amounted to $2,033,788,340 compared with $1,748,772,376 last year.

The postal deficiency had piled up to $145,015,810, an increase of $41,000,000 over the same period a year ago.

Other items of increase included $222,579,909 for the Reconstruction Finance corporation and $63,243,740 spent by the treasury to subscribe to additional stock for the federal land banks.

The $2,000,000,000 deficit was the highest ever piled up by the government in peace times.

During the war it went above that figure often. In 1918 it amounted to $3,611,492,739 while in 1919, the record, it amounted to $14,197,760,281.

The deficit for the present year to date already is twice that of last year when it amounted to $903,009,000.

HIGH COST OF CHILDREN CUTS FAMILY SIZE

Insurance Company Survey Indicates It Costs $9,000 to Raise Child

(Editor's Note: When America was young her frontiers were large families because they were necessary. Now America has become "civilized" and families are becoming smaller. What this means is discussed in this, the second of three articles showing how America likely will have a stationary population in 1950.)

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington—(AP)—The high cost of raising children in the cities is now worrying economists as well as urban parents.
For this cost, say these economists apprehensive over the problem of gauging mass production to a prospective stationary population, is probably the major cause of a swiftly declining birth-rate.
The trend to a stationary, or decreasing, population is manifest, they assert, not only in the United States but almost everywhere in the Occident.

Dr. Oliver E. Baker, economist of the department of agriculture whose specialty is the relation of population to land utilization, says the decline is definitely associated with industrial development and city life.
As the chief reason for the relative scarcity of children in the cities he cites a recent survey made by an insurance company which showed that it cost about $9,000 to raise a city child to the age of 18 for a family with an income of $2,500 a year.

He requires about three children a family to maintain even a stationary population, and it appears for a typical American urban family to raise three children will cost $25,000 to $30,000, he said.

Dr. Baker points out that urban conditions of living very often are not favorable to family life. In the urban industrial system there is little place for the child and almost no place for the aged, while the wife tends to become either a factory or an office worker.

In many cases, the individual, not the family, is the economic unit.
On the other hand, not only can the child be raised more cheaply on the farm, but also in most cases he is an economic unit from 10 years of age onward, while the wife is an economic necessity and co-worker. Even the aged find much they can do on the farm.

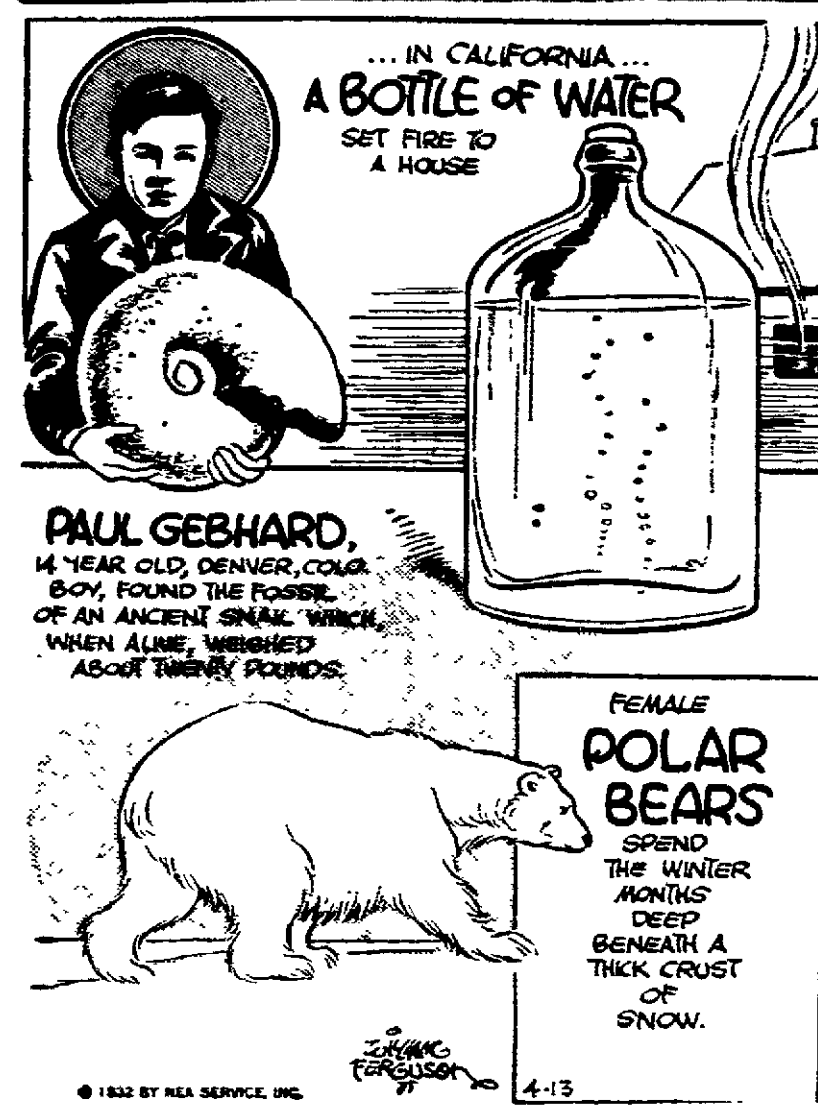

Preliminary figures indicate there were about 150,000 fewer births in 1927 than in 1920. The decline of births in a year of economic depression, Dr. Baker says, apparently was two to three times as large as the average annual decline during the preceding decade of urban prosperity.

Some hope of retarding, if not stopping, the decline is afforded by the movement of professional and business men and of factory workers to suburban places and small farms.

The prospect at present, he says, is for an increase of this movement, but as yet the influence on the birthrate is not large.

FAR-SIGHTED BABIES
New York—Every new-born child is far-sighted, M. J. Julian, director of the Better Vision Institute, reports. "The reason babies are naturally far-sighted is that focusing is a muscular effort and the visual muscles have not yet had a chance to develop," he explains. "Perhaps it indicates that man was not intended for the world of minute objects he has made for himself."

Your Birthday
WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
"ARIES"
If April 14th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9:45 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:45 a. m., and from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m.
Disappointments on the business side of life are augured for April 14th, probably through the non-materialization of promised financial aid; other avenues of assistance must be sought. Happy influences will affect the more personal and social affairs of life. Good for artistic and literary fraternities; new ideas will be born.
Children born on this April 14th will have quiet unimpulsive natures, and although they will never "set the Hudson on fire" they will most creditably take their place in the world. They will be sociable and of a good disposition, readily making friends and easily adapting themselves.
Born on April 14th you are a typical behind-the-scenes man or woman, happy to do your bit, in your own way, and preferring seclusion to the limelight. You do not have that genius for wide friendship possessed by many, but you will always have a few friends, both tried and true, who stand ready to share your joys and to lessen your sorrows.
You have a shrewd, quick brain, and a grasp of the serious affairs of the day in which you are keenly interested. You may not be a star performer yourself, but you are an enthusiastic praiser of star performances. People do not often talk over your head. Stubbornness is probably your most besetting sin; you had to admit either error or defeat, and be a mournful loser. You would prosper best in association with or under control of another. You are too shy and reserved to make a good leader, but you are unbeatable as an aide. You are good at untravelling details and are not bored by routine duties.
You would make an ideal marriage partner for one who expects constancy, dependability and loyalty from their mate. You are extremely fond of home and children, and it is hard to drive you away from your own fireside if it is a contented one.

YEAR STATEMENTS REVEAL STRENGTH OF CORPORATIONS

Help Investors Determine Value and Prestige of Securities

(Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)
New York — Painstaking scrutiny of corporation statements during times of trade depression will often uncover unsuspected investment opportunities. It goes without saying that an organization able to operate at a profit while its competitors are sustaining losses has demonstrated strength which should commend its securities to buyers. The case is stronger if results make a favorable comparison with those of other years for the same company.

Such instances are, however, few and far between. More frequent is a strong working capital position even when earnings per share are dropping or have vanished altogether. With attention fixed on the income account the market will decline to the point where the stocks are selling for less than their equity in net quick assets. This has happened repeatedly in the last two years. The calculation is not difficult. All that is necessary is to subtract the total of current liabilities from the total of current assets and apportion the remainder among the capital obligations in the order of priority.

It is simpler if there are no bonds or no preferred stock but when there are such senior securities they must be allowed for at par for the hands and at the redemption price for the preferred if there is any provision for redemption at a premium. Then the balance belongs to the common and divided by the number of shares outstanding will give the equity per share which may be compared with the market price of the stock.

PROPHECIES OF DOOM

Nothing makes much more eerie reading than those casual forecasts scientists make so often of impending and inescapable doom for the human race. The latest comes from the geologists, one of whom used a column in a New York paper the other day to announce that we shall have a new ice age in no more than 10,000 years.

Things of this sort are never really disturbing. After all, if 10,000 years do not seem long to a geologist, who is used to counting years by the million, they seem long to the rest of us; and a disaster that is 10,000 years away might as well be a hundred times that far off. We can't make ourselves worry about it.

But it does make eerie reading, this description of slowly accumulating masses of ice, up on the top of the globe, piling up silently and relentlessly, century after century, waiting to slide down over the bulge of the earth and depopulate Europe and North America.

The last ice age, for instance slid a mile-high glacier along the site of what is now New York City. The next one probably will do the same. The Great Lakes will vanish; the mountains of Tennessee will be frost-bound and desolate with a thousand years of winter, and the climate of Florida will be like Labrador's climate today.

Nature, evidently, believes in pushing a wet sponge across the slate every so often. All that we have and all that we have done will vanish, without a trace, a few score of centuries hence. Then the glaciers will retreat, and a new North American continent will be ready for experiments in civilization-building by some new group of restless adventurers from around the equator.

There is a fascination to that sort of picture, somehow. A proper amount of humility is good for us, and that is precisely what we get from these scientific prophecies of doom. We are here, so to speak, on sufferance. No matter what sort of society we fabricate here, sooner or later it will be swept away and people will have to begin all over again. Keeping that idea in mind is one way of avoiding an overstuffed ego.

HARBINGERS OF SPRING
Harbingers of spring. There are many of them and soft poets and other fancy writers never miss this opportunity to discuss the robins and the meadow larks pouring forth their little souls in gladness or to rhapsodize over the oaks and maples tinted green along their branches and otherwise effervesce about budding crocuses or blooming daffodils.

A temperate-zoner, fortunately or unfortunately as some particular harbinger may affect him, is surfeited with the signs of advancing spring. While many harbingers the poets tell about may be questionable as true signs that spring has arrived, there are others reasonably authentic.

There is, for instance, the house-cleaning wife who is liable to break out most any time after the sun has crossed the vernal equinox. When she does, one may lay to it that spring is not far away.

Then the sulphur and molasses or sassafras tea maniacs prepare their doses about this time, but these harbingers, while true signs of spring no doubt, are more apt to congeal the spring-evered blood with dread than to start it coursing with the thrill of new life.

There is one infallible sign, though, that spring has arrived. This harbinger comes with regularity and puts in its first appearance shortly after the last snow has disappeared and the ice has melted in the creeks. It is the youthful offspring's cry of, "Ma, kin I go barefooted?" And when, to this oft-repeated question, Ma finally says, "Yes," then one may be certain that spring has surely arrived.

A CHAMPION PASSES

All horse-lovers will regret the untimely death of Phar Lap, great Australian race horse. Having already established a remarkable record, he appeared to be on the threshold of a greater one, with good prospects of becoming the greatest money winner of all time.

Originally purchased by his owner for $800, his earnings had reached the sum of $332,250 and only recently he had demonstrated his unusual ability by winning the Agua Caliente Handicap in record time, though but a short time off the boat after a long sea voyage from Australia.

The motor car has eclipsed the horse as a means of providing transportation but man may never escape the lure and love of a good horse. Like the dog, he is securely entrenched in his human friend's esteem.

Not many animals become world famous. Phar Lap did because he was a champion and humanity acquires a deep respect for a champion, whether man or beast. Phar Lap had that rare combination of a phlegmatic disposition and the high courage which has been bred for generations into the thoroughbred. With these he possessed speed and the ability to go the route. When he died, bulletins flashed in the news offices of the world and many paused momentarily to pay him homage.

Not all persons have the capacity to find an affection for an animal, but that is their loss. Those who love their dog or their horse will view with understanding the unrestrained act of Phar Lap's trainer in falling, weeping on his charge's neck, as he lay dead.

WHO THE FAKIR FOOLS
The Indian fakir who got his name in the papers the other day when he swallowed a quart of deadly poison and ate a handful of broken glass, in the fond belief that because of his saintliness that would not hurt him, seems to have been more like ordinary mortals than he thought. At any rate, he very speedily died, and proved quite conclusively that the flesh of an Indian mystic is no less vulnerable than that of anyone else.

But his case is interesting for the simple reason that it sheds a revealing light on the mental attitude that those wonder-workers often have. This man, quite obviously, was perfectly sincere in his magical pose; and more charlatans possess that kind of sincerity than we usually suppose.

The wonder-worker usually deludes himself before he deludes anyone else. He may be an utter fraud, but he is seldom a hypocrite. He is his own staunchest believer.

THE MEXICAN BORDER

News that armed sentinels are riding the border ranges near Columbus, N. M., because of recent forays over the international line by Mexican bandits, has a familiar ring.

Away back in 1916 the same sort of thing was happening. Villa swept over the border, the United States army got into action, and Pershing began that fruitless journey into the Mexican deserts that led the people of the United States to wonder, for a time, if they might actually be at war without knowing it.

But things are different now. Of course, the country will insist that Columbus and other border towns be given all the protection they need against the marauders from below the line. But the wave of jingoism that swept the land in 1916, finding expression in hysterical demands that we "go down and clean up Mexico for good," will not be repeated. We don't get quite as excited about the "Mexican problem" as we used to.

Wayne, New London, Wis., business street, was a bustling, thriving street. The streets were lined with stores, and the sidewalks were crowded with people. The city was in the midst of a great boom, and the future was bright.

George Connors had returned from a several days' business trip to Milwaukee, Watertown, and Clyman.

Miss Hester Harper returned the previous day from a week's visit in Madison.

Miss Esther Struck who was teaching in Oconto arrived home to spend her Easter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Igoe, returned the preceding Tuesday evening from a five weeks' visit in Florida.

Mrs. G. McDonald, Omaha, Neb., was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Wagner.

THINGS are very, very late in getting started yesterday... the deadline had died and we hadn't even begun to write the column... we saw it coming, the delay, and we conscientiously called up the C. E. to tell him about it... "Oh yeah, oh yeah," sez the C. E., "glad you reminded me of it, now I'll make a note to have you out"...

Things with which we must put up for a while: the murder trial in Hawaii.

Yes, Yes, of Course

Dear Jonah.
I feel the same way as you do about the Lung Stretchers sent out from Milwaukee. If there's any holering to be done, we'll do it ourselves, huh?

By the way, now that the weather is turning warm again, don't you think it's about time they set fire to the rubbish in the ravine again? Kinda miss the fumes, don't you? —Smitty

My, my how we DO miss the fumes. Just like we miss the last bad cold we had.

A gent in the ossif yesterday asked us who Tillie was. Tillie, after all, isn't a real person. She's just symbolic of a lot of people we've known. Kind people. The funny kind.

will somebody please write a nice heart-wrenching love poem so the column will be more in keeping with the season? It doesn't have to be a dizzy poem. We DO use good things if we can get them.

A contribution came in the other day from New London. But it was written in red ink and even the idea of red ink gives us such malignant jitters that the letter jumped out of our hand and went running for the bookkeeping department. It felt more at home there.

Prexy Hoover has offered to work for a dollar a year, but we're darned if we can see why we're mentioning it. Things like that ought to be hushed up quick before more people get the idea. Meaning our boss.

Paavo Nurmi, famous Finnish runner, has been cleared of professionalism and can run in the Olympics. Paavo is to marry a wealthy widow soon, which may or may not tend to prove that he was making money as an amateur athlete.

Personal Health Talks

THE PHYSIOLOGY OF CHILL

Let's forget all the things we know which ain't so" about exposure and chilling, and try to consider the thing rationally.

Common sense tells us that very sudden change from hot to cold is not dangerous. In fact a great many individuals habitually subject themselves to such change in the belief, probably well founded, that it is beneficial to health. Indeed this is a principle of hydrotherapy or bath treatment.

Now I ask you in all sincerity, what difference can it make whether the sudden change is in water or in air? Or whether it is a change affecting the whole surface of the body or only a limited area of the surface?

I hasten to acknowledge that it is unwise for one who has worked up a profuse sweat by vigorous exercise, play, work, to cease exercising and sit down without covering the portions of body thus warmed up or the whole body with enough additional clothing to keep him or her comfortably warm for an hour or so. Not that there is any danger of "chilling cold," but merely because too sudden chilling is likely to cause lameness, stiffness or soreness in the muscles or their fasciae, especially if one is not accustomed to such effort. A person accustomed to the effort, or an athlete who is in good training, is less likely to suffer such soreness.

So far as we know, from scientific experiment and from actual everyday experience, there is no danger whatever in sudden exposure to cold after exposure to excessive heat. The point is that anybody, even an invalid, may safely throw off the covers or excess of clothing and cool off in a hurry after a profuse sweat has been artificially produced by the application of heat or by hot drinks or medicines.

If you can rid your mind from common delusions and traditions about this you will be compelled to admit that nearly all the deaths of "cold" or "pneumonia" that casual observers predict from such exposure never happen. And if you can stand off and view the matter from a critical eye you will discover that in nearly all instances of honest goodness pneumonia or bronchitis ascribed to inclement weather the association of the exposure to cold with the illness is in reality a post-hoc idea, that is, the explanation is made AFTER the illness has developed.

The soreness of muscles which is likely to occur after unaccustomed violent exercise no matter how carefully one covers up after the effort, or in some cases even in trained athletes if they are careless, is probably due to local irritation from lactic acid compounds produced by the oxidation or combustion of blood sugar, glycogen, in the muscles. These combustion products must be carried away thru the blood stream, not thru the sweat. If any mechanical change in the circulation occurs, as from sudden cold on the surface, the removal of these combustion products is retarded. With good physical training the capacity of the circulation to meet the demand is increased. The well trained athlete has a better metabolism, a more active general combustion or oxidation process, than a person unaccustomed to muscular work or play.

The Tynymites

By Hal Cochran

"KEEP blowing," Coppy loudly cried. "Perhaps that funny man inside the bubble is just waiting for a good chance to pop out."

"He's all curled up and, mercy me, he must feel clumsy as can be. As soon as he can talk, we'll find what this is all about."

Poor Windy! Both his cheeks were red and, very shortly, Scouty said, "I fear that he'll run out of breath. I'd better blow a bit."

"But I'm afraid if we try that the great big bubble will go flat. You can't tell what will happen if we once let go of it."

Then Duncy cried, "I have a plan." To Windy's side he quickly ran. "I'll hold my finger on the pipe while Windy takes a rest."

"The bubble's air then can't come out. 'Hurry!' he heard the others shout. They knew that Windy needed help, so that plan seemed the best."

In changing, 'course there was a leak. Some air came out and made a squeak, but Duncy thumped the pipe stem. Everything was then all right.

"Oh, thank you!" Windy promptly said. "I had a whirling in my head. Somebody else can blow a while. Just blow with all your might."

"Leave it to me!" Woe Duncy cried. "It's something I have never tried, but shucks, my lungs are good and strong, so watch me. Here I go!"

He blew and blew and blew and blew and someone said, "Three cheers for you!" "Was really quite a thrilling sight to see the bubble grow."

The man inside the bubble seemed to be real pleased. Then Scouty screamed, "Oh, something's going to happen that'll make a great big noise!" And something did. The bubble popped and out the fat man popped. Before he even reached the ground he'd shouted, "Thank you, boys!"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Told Rejuvenation
May I say a word for your Told Rejuvenation? I read the September issue and used to "see the times and really wonder if it was worth having. Now I honestly feel as if I had been cheated. I can see the brighter side of everything and my friends say I am altogether a different person. Thank you so very much. (Mrs. W. R.)

Answer—Girls in this teens who become dopey and rather melancholy, often need iodine. Mature men and women who become a bit stale need iodine. Persons who are too fast need iodine. I can't give you advice due to local irritation from lactic acid compounds produced by the oxidation or combustion of blood sugar, glycogen, in the muscles. These combustion products must be carried away thru the blood stream, not thru the sweat. If any mechanical change in the circulation occurs, as from sudden cold on the surface, the removal of these combustion products is retarded. A Bystander In Washington

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—About the most startling of all of the fantastic paintings on exhibit at the Grand Central Palace show of the Society of Independent Artists was a self-portrait by one Hans Weingaertner, of Londhurst, N. J.

Herr Weingaertner put a mirror on the floor. Then he placed a stool so he could look down and see himself in the mirror, pulled his easel up in front of him and put what he saw on his canvas.

What results is a very choice bit of "independent" art, and artist in action—upside-down.

Most of the subjects that aren't represented upside-down are stretched into most amazing proportions of broken up in pieces, with ears, eyes, hands and things scattered promiscuously over the canvas.

There's a plenty of diversion in a visit to the Independents' show, and of course some of the works are well worth seeing from a serious viewpoint.

A debt of gratitude is due the society for illustrating the possibilities of barter in solving the problems of the pinch period, too.

As you may have heard, all of the brush wielders, sculptors and what-not were ready to trade their art for any usable commodities, such as clothing, furniture and canned goods.

There has been so much talk about surpluses of manufactures and farm produce we needn't be surprised to hear of a string of shows in the near future, at which one might trade one's car for a sack of potatoes, or vice versa.

Vacation Reverses

With the Easter parade gone by and the circus posters up, with beach ensembles in the shop windows and the Broadway producers giving their plans for summer revues, with children screaming at their games in the streets and couples taking to the row-boats in the park once more, all of the futile vacation wishes are upon us.

A flood of fascinating literature starts through the mail, telling us of the charm and cool of this place and that, on the sea or in the mountains, far from the roar of "L" trains and the insufferable grime of New York in summer.

It's all very pleasant to contemplate—this getting away from noisy, nerve-racking New York.

Let us by all means pick out the city or resort which makes the grandest boasts. Let us by all means go there, so we may come back convinced that, no matter how many things about New York we may dislike, when the New York virus is in our blood we can readily find more things to dislike about any other spot on earth.

Poetesses Must Eat

Selma Robinson, the poetess, has a regular job as a press agent and doesn't call herself a "public relation agent." For that matter, Martha Wickham, one of the best-known press agents about Broadway, is a poetess, too.

Still another poetess, Margaret Fishback, is a high-powered advertising copy writer for a department store.

Hope Williams speaks German and can read French—on menus.

George Engles, the big concert mogul, sends pep and Pollyanna poems to his business associates.

But they all like him. He started out as a flunky in a vaudeville house, changing signs for the acts. Then he became secretary to Walter Damrosch, who tutored him on musical subjects. Albany, N. Y., gets credit.

Today's Anniversary

GERMAN ATTACKS FAIL

On April 13, 1918, British troops recaptured a portion of Neuve Eglise after fierce fighting with the advance German detachments who had seized the town during the previous night's advance.

German attacks on the entire Loos front were beaten off with great loss by British and Australian troops. Several new divisions of Germans were reported participating in the offensive.

American troops in the Toul sector engaged in an all day battle with strong German patrols, and foiled several enemy efforts to capture sections of the American trenches.

German planes raided Paris. Bombs killed 26 persons and wounded 72 others.

More than 2,000,000 Americans were under arms in the United States and in France. Several divisions in France were rapidly being prepared for front line duty.

But a man like you was never brought up to wear trash.

There's lots of "cheap" clothing on the market... but are you in the market for it? Thanks... we didn't think so. You were brought up to like quality things... so were we... and we're both still sticking to our guns... isn't that right?

At $20 to $35 you'll find here this Spring the finest men's clothing in America... the sort there's real pleasure in buying, selling, wearing and talking about.

NO FOREST FIRES OUT OF CONTROL IN STATE TODAY

Last Year at This Time
There Were 300 Burning
in Northern Woods

Madison —(AP)—A year ago this week more than 300 fires were burning in Wisconsin's northern forests and before that arid month of April was ended 1,122 fires had taken their toll in property damage.

Today according to the conservation commission there is not a single uncontrollable fire.

Mother nature, sadly lacking in her protective work during the period of the drought, is now back on the job and that's the answer.

During the winter months just passed she blanketed the forests with a copious covering of snow and provided, in the first 15 days of April, considerably more precipitation than was recorded in the whole month last year.

Dead vegetation has been matted down and the ground has been thoroughly dampened. Where fires are burning they are purposeful fires to clear away brush.

With return of the natural protection against forest fires man alone bears watching to help bring the situation entirely back to normal for 99 per cent of the fires under ordinary circumstances are caused by human negligence, the commission said.

The damage that was caused by the burning of the forests last year is incalculable. Some $421,501 was the reported damage but this did not take into account the destruction of prospective timber which was 100 per cent in the area burned.

Forty per cent of the 2340 fires which burned over 640,979 acres last year, with an average of 274 acres per fire, started on April 12 and April 12 and April 13, the commission said.

On both those days high south-west winds and extremely low relative humidity prevailed. On April 12 a dust storm blocked out visibility so that the watch towers became useless. Fires crossed the Wolfe and Wisconsin rivers as though no obstacles existed.

Comparison of the records of the last four years shows that the percentage of the area burned increased from 35 per cent to 47 per cent and the total cost of protection increased from $137,751.50 to $384,260.44. The more protection provided the greater increase in the number of fires because often times fires burned away unnoticed and unreported.

Since the experience of 1931, which climaxed the three year drought, the commission has vastly extended its plans for fire protection and hopes this year for the utmost in results.

Protection areas have been systematically organized, prompt work will be insisted upon and new fire lanes and roads are being cut out in an effort to keep the hazard to a minimum.

FARM PRICE DROP CHECKED IN MARCH

Level Stops at 29 Per Cent Below Pre-war Average

Madison —(AP)—The sharp decline in farm prices which started in October was checked in Wisconsin last month, the price level stopping at 29 per cent below the pre-war average, the same level as in February.

The Wisconsin farm price level advanced with rising prices last summer but from October to March the level sank steadily under the combined influence of cheaper milk and livestock prices. Walter H. Ebling, statistician for the U. S. and Wisconsin department of agriculture, said today.

Although milk and egg prices declined from February 15 to March 15, livestock, grain and chicken prices increased. The prices of livestock on March 15 were nearly eight per cent higher than in February and compensated for declining prices to keep the farm price level at the February point.

Farm prices of hogs averaged $3.90 per hundred on March 15 as compared with $3.30 in February while beef cattle advanced in price from $3.10 to $3.50. Similar increases were apparent in sheep and lamb prices. Veal calves averaged $5.10 per hundred in mid-March as compared with $3.40 for February.

Prices for livestock at commodity markets have turned downward recently so that a part of the gain reported for March 15 has been lost since that date, Mr. Ebling said.

Milk prices in March averaged 93 cents per hundred pounds as compared with the February average of 36 cents. The high point in milk prices last fall was reached in October with an average of $1.29. The March price was the lowest for the present depression and was 26 per cent below the prices in Wisconsin from 1910 to 1914.

Farm prices of eggs encountered unusually sharp declines recently. Mr. Ebling reported on March 15 the price was only 11 cents per dozen, the lowest since records have been kept—1910. The February price was 13.5 cents while in January eggs brought 147 cents per dozen.

2,610 PASSENGER CARS REGISTERED IN MARCH

Madison —(AP)—Registration of 2,610 passenger cars and 494 trucks was reported today for March of this year by Theodore Dammann, secretary of state. Total registrations for 1932 were reported as 7,232 and 1,148 for cars and trucks, respectively. New York —(CPA)—Friends of Dr. John F. Condon, innocent interned in Col. Lindbergh's fruitless payment of $50,000 to get his child back, say the venerable doctor of philosophy's romantic and loves. Tom Sawyer plots and all the glow and shimmer of juvenile bells letters. It was inevitable, according to the above sources, that he should publish the "Jasec" advertisements the word saving the phonetics of his initials, that he should offer his own reward and engage in his own negotiations with the kidnaper.

For many years Dr. Condon was principal of Bronx school 13, up on the edge of Westchester-co. He is described as one of the few educators who could successfully get down on all fours with the children. He preached red-bloodedness and taught boxing, putting on the gloves with the boys, who liked him immensely. Still sly and nimble, he was retired several years ago, at 70, with his eye still alert and roving. He lectured on pedagogy for a while in extension courses at Fordham university, but his eager, ranging imagination sought wider fields. He wrote letters to the papers, engaged in interesting polemics and took a hand in public affairs. Naturally, these extracurricular interests—as the doctor himself no doubt would put it—impelled him into the Lindbergh case.

Former Senator Robert L. Owen testifying on the bonus bill before the house ways and means committee, attributes the 1929 stock market collapse and all that came thereafter to the "prodigal use of credit." He backs Representative Wagon, Patman in advocating "reflation"—nothing to do with Amos and Andy and meaning merely fiat money—"Emit this money for the payment of the bonus," he says.

Mr. Owen was chairman of the senate committee on banking and currency and as such had charge of the passage of the federal reserve act. Congressman Charles Lindbergh, father of the boy who later sprouted wings and a lonely outsider in congressional doings, told the committee, "This act won't work. Its powers are not mandatory. You who are advocating it will some day obstruct its operation against inflation."

Congressman Lindbergh died and was forgotten. The boom days came. On April 21, 1928, Senator Owen, opposing any act of the federal reserve to restrict brokers' loans, said: "All human business is speculative. Speculative buying and selling is a necessary and unavoidable part of the market system and is not against public policy."

On March 31, 1929, Senator Owen, eloquently denoted Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank of New York for his reassuring diagnosis of the then somewhat heated stock market.

On March 14, 1932, Senator Owen assailed the federal reserve for its efforts to restrict credit—the use of which was getting more and more "prodigal" just then.

Mr. Owen is a tender, lawyer, ed.

tor and businessman, who went to the senate in 1907. He is part Scotch-Irish and part Cherokee. Several times he has loomed visibly for the Democratic presidential nomination. He is a liberal, an early advocate of women's suffrage, and regardless of any wrong guesses in the past, as capable of interpreting Maynard Keynes' "Managed Currency" as any man in America. If this surprising renewal of fiat money talk should ever lead to any such decision.

Those who moan over America's "cultural lag" can easily pick an argument with Professor Carl Mollen, appraised by critics as the world's greatest living sculptor, who renounces his Swedish citizenship and becomes an American because he finds this country culturally hospitable. New York had its first view of his sculpture Tuesday with the opening of a large exhibit at the Brooklyn museum.

"GET THIS RIGHT, CASEY— 103,500 MILES"

An Interview by
ROBERT J. CASEY
Chicago Daily News Reporter

Carrol Edgren, insurance man of 230 Earl St., St. Paul, talks about transportation—tells Casey how to drive 103,500 miles with minor repair bills

CARROL EDGREN, insurance man, stood beside his Pontiac parked in front of his St. Paul home, to add 40,500 and 63,000 and note that they totaled 103,500.

"That's not the census of the Twin Cities," he said as he displayed the result to the inquiring reporter. "It's my mileage on Iso-Vis Motor Oil. . . . And I'll bet the cars in last year's road tests never came anywhere near that figure."

"It's all Iso-Vis mileage?" demanded the reporter.

Mr. Edgren nodded.

"All of it," he stated with some emphasis. "The 40,500 miles is on the speedometer of the Pontiac right here. The other 63,000 was the total on my other Pontiac when I turned it in. I figure I've covered the entire 103,500 miles in a little more than four years."

"And what was the performance of the cars in all that driving?"

"I'd tell you in a minute if it wasn't A-1. I know how to kick about things that go wrong. But my upkeep bills have been so low that I'm almost ashamed to sell insurance to an automobile mechanic.

"I'm the lad who gives the automobile designers bad dreams. A car to me isn't just a sort of perambulator that you use to give the kiddies the air. It's nothing but transportation to me. And I make it work."

"And you think oil is an important factor in mileage and operating economy?"

"It may be heresy for me to say so but I think that the difference between one car and another isn't a difference in cost but a difference between the kinds of stuff that people put into crankcases."

"I started to use Iso-Vis the first day it was put on the market in St. Paul. My friend at the filling station gave me a sales talk on it and I took it for what it was worth. Then my repair bills—or lack of them—began to give me a sales talk and I've stuck to it ever since. You can quote me on that if you want to. And get the total right: 103,500 miles."

Mr. Edgren's 103,500 trouble-free miles prove again what Iso-Vis has demonstrated in laboratory tests and in A.A.A. tests on the Indianapolis Speedway—Positive Lubrication Protection. Iso-Vis (a Standard Oil product) will not thin out from dilution. See the Ball and Bottle Test at Standard Oil service stations and dealers.

Girls' Camp To Open For Fifth Season

THE Catholic Girls' camp on Shawano Lake, conducted by the Green Bay Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, will open its fifth season July 2. It was announced recently by Mrs. F. J. Van Laanen, camp chairman of the council.

Open house will be held the Sunday before the opening, June 23, when parents of prospective members, members of the council, and anyone interested in the project are invited to inspect the camp. The personnel this summer will be about the same as last year, with Miss Alberta Carrigan, Milwaukee, as athletic director, and Miss Mary Emily Ormer, West Bend, assistant director. Members of the Diocesan Council will again take their turns at acting as "house mothers" throughout the season, and a resident nurse will remain at the camp all summer.

The camp season will last eight weeks, with the last two in August being devoted principally to business girls. The first six weeks will be especially for the junior girls, but campers of any age are invited to the camp at any time. The capacity this year will be 40 girls, in addition to the staff. The dormitory is being remodeled so as to provide all campers sleeping quarters, with a dressing room for every three campers.

Many Activities

Swimming, boating, tennis, archery, handwork, and dramatics are included in the regular program of activities, with horseback riding and golfing as special features. Scout work will be stressed this year, and the directors are prepared to instruct the work of the girl scout movement which is gaining favor in this section. Scout equipment is being installed at the camp.

Younger girls planning to attend the camp are to notify Mrs. Van Laanen immediately as the first few weeks are usually so crowded that early planning is necessary to accommodate all applicants. Business girls reservations should be made with Mrs. Lorraine Lambreau at the Columbus Community club, the Catholic giving history of the camp, a description of the location, and general information for applicants will be released soon, and may be obtained from Mrs. Van Laanen or Mrs. Lambreau.

The quarterly meeting of the Diocesan Council is being held today at the Columbus Community club in Green Bay, at which further plans for the camp are being discussed. Representatives from the various districts throughout the diocese are attending.

Mrs. Gustave Keller, Sr., Appleton, is a member of the camp committee.

No sooner had the one-pound son of Mr. and Mrs. William St. John of Kansas City apparently clinched the flyweight championship of the world than Mrs. Carl Kaut, also of Kansas City, rose to challenge his rights. The tiny infant, only 14 inches long, with three-inch long arms, is fed by an eye-dropper and apparently is getting along all right. Top picture shows the father and Mrs. St. John's sister, Miss Margaret Hammer, looking at incubator in which the one-pound baby lives. Teach Child How He May Spend Money

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Here is your allowance, James. Twenty-five cents. Five goes to the bank. Five goes to Sunday school. Ten cents you will need for your school ticket, that leaves you five. Don't buy any candy or chewing gum. That's all the money you will have this week, you know. So be careful."

That won't help a boy learn to handle money. What you want to do is teach him how to use his own funds but you do all the spending. He gets nothing out of it, not even the experience. The first mistake lies in telling him to put that five cents into the bank. That kind of saving doesn't mean a thing to the child. It is your saving, not his.

Children know nothing of saving. Childhood is the time to spend. Saving comes much later. If children are not trained to spend money, they will never learn to save any. The two go together. Begin by letting the child have his weekly allowance of a few cents to spend. Talk over his spending but do not scold about it. He must gather his own wisdom in this matter.

It will not be long before he asks for something that exceeds his weekly allowance. You point out to him that he can lay aside some of his money each week until he gets enough. Then he can buy what he wants. You take care that this saving is within his power and the goal not too far away. If this allowance is ten cents a week and he wants a six dollar pair of skates he cannot save up for them. You buy them or tell him you cannot afford to do so. The child on the ten cent allowance can save three cents a week for four weeks and buy a ball for fifteen cents, using three of the present week's allowance. That saving will teach him to look ahead.

If he is told to put so much money into the bank, without a purpose, it never touches him. He has done an errand for you but his value does not add anything to his thrift.

Children live in a world of immediate needs. We cannot wish maturity upon them if we would. If we can begin to sow seeds of thrift, judicious saving, we do well. This is done by teaching children to spend money. We have to teach them to keep accounts. It is surprising how informative an account book can be if you know how to read it. Some children get into trouble, and stay there long after they are apparently grown up, because they cannot learn to add and subtract, because they cannot sense the value of time and labor in terms of money. Only experience teaches such values.

Sometimes we make the mistake of keeping children on the same allowance for years. We don't let them grow up in money experiences. We ought to keep adjusting the child's allowance to his experiences and keep widening his experiences.

By the time he is ready for college, or for business, he should be able to buy his own clothes, handle his own money affairs, earning, spending, saving, with little help.

All children need this instruction. We are afraid to go very far with it lest we make grave mistakes. If we start right, if we keep at it long enough, we can overcome the mistakes. There is only one way a child can learn to use money and that is by using it. He ought to begin early and spend his penny for what he wants. He ought to begin to earn money as soon as he can. Always he needs guidance and always he must have experience that teach him wisdom.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

A MISSTEP

BECAUSE it had grown so much colder Sue slipped into a camel's hair coat that was warm and thick with a great collar that kept the wind from her face. The hat that she crushed down on her head was the same shade of brown as the coat, and her gloves, practical things for driving, were brown too. Sue turned her school coat and hat. Nancy's clothes, lovely as they were, had given the girls more costumes for afternoons and evenings than for practical purposes.

Sue hadn't thought of Corinne very much lately. She hadn't had time to let her younger sister, with her gypsyish, dark face, drift through her thoughts. Now suddenly, arranging the wide belt of the sports coat, Sue remembered the coats that hung in Corinne's wardrobe. A great racoon coat that was low-haired and silvery. A gray squirrel that was soft and lovely. A lapin jacket. She made a face at herself in the mirror. Clothes didn't matter. She would rather have Jack than all the emeralds and rubies and diamonds that any Arab fairy tale could have given her.

The car started swiftly. The garage was warm and the car had been used not very long before. But the snow was drifting in the road.

"I mean if you'll get back all right tonight," Ruth asked suddenly. "I hope we don't. To be lost in a snowstorm would be just the right ending for today. At least, for me it would. Is that the road ahead?"

Sue drove carefully. But swiftly. She wondered to herself if she would ever learn to be as careful as she ought to be. She liked rhythm, motion. She didn't like the steady monotony of slowly going some place.

But the car eventually reached town, was parked in a garage, while they saw the show they had wanted to see, and went to dinner afterwards.

Starting home, in a dusk that was growing black much too fast, Sue decided to drive past her family's house. Just to know that the lamps were lighted and the fires were bright, somehow made it seem that life was right. But when she came to the house it was dark.

"Everyone must be away," she said out loud. "It looks forlorn. I think I'll drive around by Harry and Corinne's. It isn't so far. I have a funny yearning to know where my folks are tonight."

The road was white. Startlingly white. There were few tracks.

"It's a blizzard, only we're so foolish we don't know it," Ruth said. "Everyone with any sense is at home tonight."

Harry's house was just ahead. Lights shone from the window. Welcoming lights.

As Sue neared the house she glanced out. She saw figures in the rooms. She wondered if her family had gathered there. Suddenly she felt sorry for Ruth. Sorrier than she ever had. Ruth, too, was separated from her family. Not by any misunderstanding that would be made right some day. By one that couldn't possibly be patched up satisfactorily.

She turned the car impulsively. And as she did the car shuddered. Dangerously. Treacherously. She knew that it was going over. Could feel the swaying. But she couldn't stop it. Couldn't...

One teaspoon of vinegar added to the fat in which doughnuts are fried will prevent the cakes from absorbing the fat.

Any chopped meat, made into balls and broiled, makes a very palatable dish for luncheon, supper or dinner.

Potted ferns will likely be "straggly" by Spring. Cut off the browned and ragged fronds, repot if pot-bound, give bone-meal, and as soon as the weather is permanently warm sink the pots to the brim in a border where they will have shade in the afternoons.

When rolling out the last of a doughnut mixture, try rolling in a few fancy currants. Then cut the dough in small, fancy shapes and fry in the usual manner. The children will like them—the grown-ups, too.

NEW PROCESS "AGES" WOOD IN FEW HOURS

Madison—(AP)—Through the use of an ammonia gas process, research workers at the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory here have succeeded in "aging" wood in a couple of hours.

By means of the process wood can be given the soft brown shades that interior woodwork assumes after long periods of time. The gas stain is said to be superior to the liquid stain because the entire piece of wood is treated prior to assembly rather than only the face after assembly.

The treatment involves subjecting finished woodwork to ammonia gas under atmospheric pressure and temperature. Five to 15 pounds of anhydrous ammonia gas, costing from 15 to 25 cents a pound, will treat 1500 feet of lumber, the research workers found.

CLAIM OCONTO-CO TAXES TOPPED LEGAL LIMITS

Oconto—(AP)—Briefs in a test case brought to settle contentions that Oconto-co taxes in 1930 exceeded limits set by statute, will be filed here soon in circuit court.

The test action is brought by the Oconto company, lumber manufacturer. Its claim is similar to 1499 others filed with the county clerk. It is expected that the case, now before Judge Arnold F. Murphy, will be carried to the supreme court and that its determination will effect other northern Wisconsin counties.

ATTITUDE OF MIND IS CAUSE OF WRINKLES

BY ALICIA HART

No little girl would ever pout if she could be faced with a picture of how her mouth would eventually sag from so doing.

Many of those mouth wrinkles can be avoided, of you just keep smiling.

These mouth wrinkles, which may even in time become furrows, are among the more revealing of life's lines. Whether you know it or not, if you yourself entertain mean thoughts, keep a chip on your shoulder, and bear a grudge against others, your mouth will set that way and there are those wrinkles! Your mouth actually shows your state of mind when you are relaxed and off-guard.

Obviously, your mental attitude has a lot to do with mouth wrinkles. You can help to improve the situation if you go at it in a determined way.

First—Don't let yourself get too disillusioned about everything. Keep a few nice thoughts, some kindly ones. Realize that you have some blessings and concentrate on them. Pollyanna never would be caught with bad mouth wrinkles. Emulate her just a little bit, for beauty's sake.

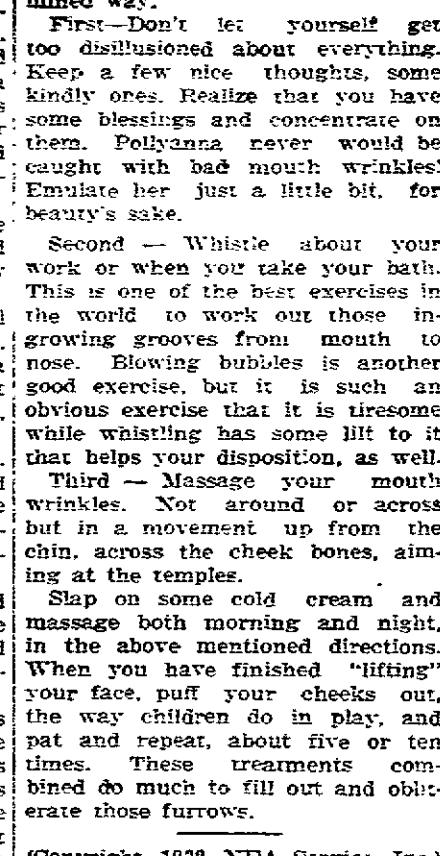

Second—Whistle about your work or when you take your bath. This is one of the best exercises in the world to work out those in-growing grooves from mouth to nose. Blowing bubbles is another good exercise, but it is such an obvious exercise that it is tiresome while whistling has some lift to it that helps your disposition, as well.

Third—Massage your mouth wrinkles. Not around or across but in a movement up from the chin, across the cheek bones, aiming at the temples.

Slap on some cold cream and massage both morning and night, in the above mentioned directions. When you have finished "lifting" your face, puff your cheeks out, the way children do in play, and pat and repeat, about five or ten times. These treatments combined do much to fill out and obliterate those furrows.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

ON ATTRACTING THE UNWILLING IN MALE — KEEPING MORE BOY FRIENDS THAN ONE

Dear Miss Vane: There is a certain bachelor in our town who interests me. How can I get him to become interested in me, I know him slightly. He is respected in this town and well-liked but he doesn't seem to care for the society of women. I am alone and would like to have him for a friend. We are both past forty.

LONELY.

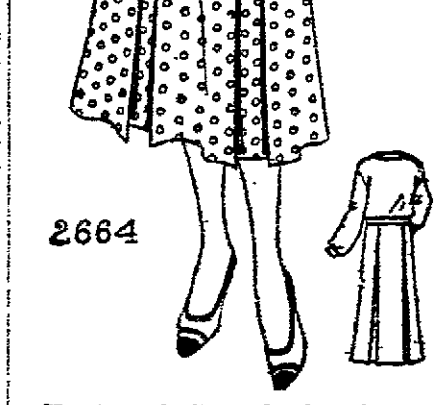

If I could work the miracle which made a woman attractive to the one man in the world who attracted her, I would be without question the most popular woman in the world today. Unfortunately no one has the recipe for that miracle, and until it is discovered, there's nothing for people like you to do, lonely, but keep on hoping until something happens.

If you can't, by keeping yourself attractive and charming, interest the bachelor-friend, then there isn't much an outsider can do to help you, much as she'd like to. If you haven't the personality that appeals to the particular "him" you're after, then nothing else can be of the slightest use.

Maybe you think you might work

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

PROVIDING FOR A DISCARD

An unusual situation, not generally appreciated by bridge players, occurred in a recent Contract tournament in Cleveland, in which only one of the contesting pairs reached the correct game declaration. This situation is presented in the hand shown below. The problem involved was one of finding a discard for a losing trick in a side suit, in order to realize the full trick-taking power of the combined hands. More than adequate trump support for both of South's suits was held by North, but only one pair realized the necessity of having a long side suit in the declaring hand in order to gain the vital tenth trick. This situation occurs occasionally and, through correct bidding methods, can be correctly appraised.

The players who had the satisfaction of making game, while others fell a trick short of that, were Mr. Russell J. Balaban, Secretary of the Cleveland Whist Club, playing the South hand, and Mr. A. G. Schuman, former President of the club, who held the North hand.

The hand and bidding were:

South—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

able, probably holds the major ten in the suit which he has bid. West's bid has probably made valueless the diamond King.

In the play, West opened the King of clubs and continued with three rounds of that suit, the third round being ruffed by the Declarer. The adverse trumps were then drawn and, as planned, Mr. Baldwin found a discard of one of the Dummies losing diamonds on the fifth heart, thereby losing only two clubs and one diamond and scoring game. The bidding of North and South showed a keen appreciation of the trick-taking possibilities of the combined hands. A South's bid of four spades, after his partner had supported both suits, was absolutely correct. When partner has shown support, a four-card suit may be bid as freely as a five-card suit, and the nature of partner's bidding had quite clearly indicated the kind of support he held for the South hand.

Game, of course, would have been equally safe if the King of clubs had been located in the North hand. The fact that East had refused to support West's Overcall strongly indicated that practically all the opposing strength was held by West.

TODAY'S POINTER

Possible unusual playing situations can frequently be recognized by the players during the bidding. Bidding is mental play, and inferences should be drawn as to playing situations, as well as honor and playing-tricks.

Tomorrow's Hand

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

South—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

friends you can gather together—and all the good times too.

Neither of the boys is engaged to you—therefore neither of them need expect to have a monopoly on your time and affection. Let them both go on being friends and don't try to make a "steady" of either.

Put Unchivalrous Male Out of Mind

Frances: The young man has shown his feelings all too plainly. What's the use of getting him back. He doesn't love you any more and could never be happy with him again, remembering how perfectly happy you'd once been.

His conduct hasn't been chivalrous to any degree. When you're breaking the news to your fiancée that all is over, you don't usually ask her to return the engagement ring so that it may be done over—and then disappear for good. That isn't an especially nice trick and the fact that he played it, shows how far he is from the romantic lover you once pictured him.

Therefore, my dear, it's really better to forget. You have nothing with which to reproach yourself. You've played fair and he hasn't—that's all. Don't blame yourself but

U. S. PILOTS HAVE MOST TIME IN AIR

Washington—U. S. Army and Navy pilots had more time in the air during 1931 than pilots of any other nation, recent figures show.

The total for the two combined U. S. units was 670,000 hours in the air, or about 190 hours for each pilot in the Army and 160 hours for each Navy pilot.

Reports from other countries show that the total flying time of the Royal Air Force in 1931 was 325,000 hours; French air force, between 250,000 and 400,000 hours; Italy, 170,000; Netherlands, 31,500; Sweden, 15,500; and Denmark 4,000.

The number of hours flown by U. S. forces is equivalent to having 75 planes in the air for every minute of each day and night during the year.

Y. W. C. A. DRIVE TO RAISE $4,800 ENTERS 3RD DAY

Civic Leaders Endorse Program of Institution at Neenah

Neenah—The annual Y. W. C. A. campaign entered its third day today in its effort to raise $4,800 to finance its program for the year. This is $1,200 less than the budget of last year.

Educators, business women, housewives and newcomers of the twin cities are backing the organization movement as a means of worthwhile activity to a wide circle of Menasha and Neenah residents.

According to Ray J. Fink, principal of Neenah high school, the Y. W. C. A. has a vital place in the twin cities because it renders a valuable service to girls of school age through its Girl Reserve clubs and its educational and vocational advantages have far reaching results.

Miss Janet Martin, Menasha business girl declares: "Aside from the tangible benefit to be derived from the Y. W. C. A., I believe the 'Y' renders a very real service by furnishing inspiration and a wider outlook to girls."

Principal John Holzman of Neenah high school declares that the organization is filling a distinct need in his city. He states: "The Y. W. C. A. has done good work with our high school girls. It has provided wholesome recreation for many of them, and it has been very helpful in placing girls who desire work. Girls, new to the community have been befriended."

Club activities at the Y. W. C. A. last year included 1,866 industrial girls, 1,238 business girls, 240 school girls who were among the 16,000 women participating in the Y. W. C. A. affairs or made use of the building.

Varied Program

The clubwork at the Y. W. C. A. is far reaching and varied including nine or more adult clubs and several schoolgirl organizations. The A. Y. club, numbering 35 members, meets each week for a program including dramatics, gymnasium, parties, music or interesting talks. Each spring this group sponsors a May dinner for all household employees of the twin cities. The industrial girl meets with her group each month for varied programs.

Included in the activities is a drama club, a choral society, a Good Times group made up of business and professional women, a Modern Readers club which studies modern literature and current events, the Twin City bridge club, and the Young Women's council that sponsors demonstration teas and talks on household affairs. This group has given talks on china, silver and linens.

The Who's New Study club is the organization for the younger married women who come into the community as strangers. This group carries out a worth-while study program.

Eight Y. W. C. A. clubs exist for school girls. These are the high school Girl Reserve club, the junior high school Girl Reserve, and two campus girls' organizations in Menasha; the high school Girl Reserve club, the Freshman Girl Reserve club, the Eighth Grade Girl Reserve and the Seventh Grade club in Neenah. The Interclub council is made up of two girls from each of the high school clubs and one of the campus groups. The council plans activities in which all clubs take part.

MALZOW PRESIDENT OF NEENAH CLUB

George Jagerson Elected Vice President at Annual Meeting

Neenah—The Neenah club held its annual meeting Tuesday evening at the club dining room with approximately 190 members in attendance. Following a 6:30 dinner, a short business meeting was held. John Powers, C. H. Vette, Frank Kellogg and J. G. Hingman were elected directors for two year terms, and Dio Dunham was elected on the board to fill the unexpired term of George A. Jagerson, who was named vice president. R. D. Malzow was elected president. A secretary and treasurer will be elected at a later meeting, when committees will be appointed.

The entertainment feature consisted of instrumental numbers and the Little German Band by members of the high school band, and a mass singing led by Lester Mazz. A singing contest was held and the group captained by F. J. Schneider won the trophy, while that captained by H. P. Buck won a can of raspberries. Chester D. Shepherd gave a monologue, followed by a sketch by members of the Little theatre of Appleton and a short talk by John Scheibler, relative to the work of the Little Theatre movement in this vicinity.

AWARD 85 RIBBONS TO BRIGADE MEMBERS

Neenah—Eighty-five Brigades received ribbons for their exceptional ratings in the grading system for March at the Tuesday evening meeting at the brigade building. Presentation was made by Capt. Leo Schubart, 50 ribbons going to members of the Monday night group and the remaining 35 ribbons going to Tuesday night group boys. PASS BILL GIVING MENASHA MAN $65

Action by Senate Corrects Misplacement Made by B. F. Hart

BY RUBY A. BLACK. Post-Crescent Washington Corrs. Washington—The Senate has passed a bill to correct a mistake made by the Veterans' Bureau and a misplacement suffered by B. F. Hart of Menasha which cost him $65.

The difficulty arose out of a check for $65 made by the Veterans' Bureau to Theodore John Gustavus which Gustavus endorsed to Hart, and Hart lost for five years, finally finding it caught in the back of his cash register.

Meanwhile, the Veterans' Bureau had discovered that it should never made the check to Gustavus. That veterans having been overpaid by $75.66.

But as none of this seems to have been the fault of either Gustavus, now dead, or Hart, and as Hart has established his right to the money, both the Veterans' Bureau and Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, that very hard-boiled guardian of the treasury, were convinced that Hart should not suffer the loss due to their own carelessness and to his mishap. But as Gustavus was overpaid, the veterans' bureau could not make out another check to his estate to clear the matter up.

"EAT MORE TO GET THIN"

An Italian Discovery

Drink Water Before Breakfast and Make One Change in Diet Only to Rip Off Ten Pounds in 10 Days

HERE is sweet music, in scientific tempo, for fat people's ears. "Eat more to grow thin."

Thanks to a unique Italian discovery, thousands of people are doing it. Losing as much as seven pounds a week, and building their health as well.

Here's the way. So if you want to get rid of some bulk, cut this article out and save it. Chances are, in a week, your friends will be wondering what you've been doing to yourself to get rid of the fat they used to tease you about.

What You Do

FIRST: As soon as you get up in the morning, put two tablespoonsful of sparkling Briscio's Italian effervescent in a half glass of cool water; and drink it down while it is still effervescent. This tends to de-acidify the system before food touches the stomach.

NEXT: Make just one simple change in your diet. Eat DOUBLE the quantity you now eat of certain foods; and cut down on others. Here are the foods to double on; the ones to cut down on.

DOUBLE on these: Carrots, spinach, oranges, cabbage, lettuce, new turnips, white squash, sauerkraut, broccoli, fresh peas, apples, and all green vegetables. See how much of these you can make your stomach hold. Eat also your usual appetite's requirement of any lean meat: Beef, veal, chicken, etc.

CUT on these: Eat bran or whole wheat bread instead of white bread or biscuits. For dessert have fresh fruit instead of pastry. Cut down on butter but don't cut it out entirely.

BEFORE BED: Repeat two table-spoonsful of sparkling Italian Briscio's in half a glass of water to again de-acidify the stomach. Don't think, either, that this is hard. It makes a really pleasant drink that tastes like lemonade, not like vile-tasting salts. So everything is easy.

The result of this dietary change will be that you'll really have MORE than you want to eat, yet will see fat go in a way you wouldn't have believed. And, you'll feel more active than you probably have for years.

For the diet that takes off the fat, cut this article out and save it. The de-acidifier you use is called Briscio's Italian effervescent (pronounced Bree-os-ky). You can get it at any drugstore.

MURRAY LEAVES OREGON FOR HOME

Oklahoma Governor Says "Urgent Matters" Call Him to Oklahoma

Peaslee, Mo. (AP)—Gov. William H. Murray sped homeward today leaving a campaign tour of Oregon incomplete, trailing in a Nebraska incomplete preference test and faced by dissension among his Oklahoma subordinates.

"Urgent matters" at home, said the Democratic candidate for president, caused him to abandon his scheduled itinerary.

He declined to elaborate when his train paused here. Reaching Denver shortly before noon, "Alfalfa Bill" planned to take a plane.

In Oklahoma, official actions of Lieut. Gov. Robert Burns aroused speculation. State officers, however, would not comment for publication on possible reasons for the governor's return.

Burns has called for an attorney general's opinion on the legality of state expenditures for a sub-prison; has demanded to know why certain companies allegedly were allowed to overproduce Oklahoma City field oil wells and has threatened to "shake up" Murray's office force because some employees "pay no attention to me as acting governor."

Replying to the request for an oil report, Lieut. Col. Cicero L. Murray, who has charge of enforcement of prohibition rules, said last night military forces do not keep production records, but only assist corporation commission agents. He is a cousin of the governor.

Early returns from the Nebraska primary placed Murray third. "Alfalfa Bill" left Portland without explanation after an address Monday night. He passed up the opportunity to speak before three Democratic meetings called for yesterday.

Kaukauna Bees Return To Work As Stills Disappear

BY W. F. WINSEY

Bees in the vicinity of Kaukauna have reformed, according to George Jacobson, one of the leading beekeepers of this section and deputy state apiary inspector. A few years ago the swarms around Kaukauna formed the habit of leaving the hives before regular working hours in the morning, remaining away all day and zigzagging home long after bed time each night. In fact some of them remained away all night as they were not fit for a safe flight. The bees that came home were quarrelsome on the way and carried with them a peculiar odor.

At the time the bees were forming their bad habits Mr. Jacobson noticed that the comparatively small amounts of honey being unloaded and stored in the hives was tainted with a peculiar odor.

After making an intensive study to discover the source of the taint and the stimulating effect the honey was having on consumers, and failing in his endeavors, Mr. Jacobson sent samples of the honey to the laboratory of the College of Agriculture, Madison, for analysis. The specialists worked long hours on one batch of samples after another, and although they smelled moonshine and were cheered by its exhilarating action they were baffled and consequently made trips of investigation to the Kaukauna honey producing district.

At the time that all hands were ready to give up the job of discovering the source of the moonshine fumes in Kaukauna honey, a kind but troubled old lady whose home was near Wrightstown, visited Mr. Jacobson, entering a complaint to the effect that honey bees were attacking her husband daily and were preventing him from doing his work.

The bees would gather on her husband's nose and on his face, hands and clothing, and in their eagerness were warlike with each other, with workmen and customers. Coming to request Mr. Jacobson to see that all owners of hives in the vicinity kept their bees at home. The woman solved the problem that had baffled Mr. Jacobson and the Madison laboratories.

Mr. Jacobson, after the woman had departed for her home, visited other neighbors in the vicinity to find out to what extent Kaukauna bees were bothering them. He found that the bees were generally considered a nuisance whenever the creeks and ditches emitted an odor of mash or moonshine.

For the past two or three years and so far this spring, Kaukauna bees are proving that they have reformed. They have stopped loafing about stills, quarrelling, staying out after hours, and stinging and are collecting large quantities of pure honey.

He is at a loss to explain the reformation of the Kaukauna bees on any other ground than that the stills have been closed by the general depression or that the manufacturers of home brew are now covering up their mash and in that manner excluding the bees from touching or tasting.

SCHELLER TALKS TO SERVICE CLUB

Praises Such Organizations for Part They Play in Promoting Citizenship

New London—Col. Frank J. Scheller, Neenah, addressed the Lions club at the weekly meeting Tuesday on American citizenship. He emphasized the part that service clubs can do and are doing in furthering citizenship. He brought out the fact that labor and capital are not fighting as they used to do. "Industrial leaders to be considered good citizens, must first consider the individual," he said. He opposed a sole system and believed that while earnings must not be divided in a communistic manner that the worker should be benefited by shorter hours or a shorter working week.

Mr. Scheller maintained that a man's interest in citizenship should be carried not into politics but into the functions of government. The rising cost, he said, of handling the city, state and country affairs should be halted. If we are to consider the rising generation, he continued, we should not burden it with building projects for which they will have to assume responsibility. He further stated that he believed that citizens should take a strong interest in consolidation of various county institutions, including schools. He saw no necessity for the cost of some rural student's education varying from $40 to $500. To practice good citizenship, he said, people should be vitally interested in the answers to these problems.

Col. Scheller pointed out that such organizations, the boy scouts, student training camps, Junior Red Cross, and kindred groups have been formed to care for growing youth, not to prepare for war, but to inspire youth during its years of development, to give boys something constructive to do and to intensify the significance of worthwhile projects.

PLAN MILK UNION FOR FARMERS OF STOCKBRIDGE TOWN

John Loehr of St. John Explains Purposes of Wisconsin Dairy Union

Stockbridge—A meeting of the Wisconsin Dairy union was held at the Harbor pavilion at Stockbridge harbor on Monday evening, with John Loehr of St. John, organizer of the union, as the chief speaker. An address was also given by Mr. Daniels of St. John.

By popular vote, Hugh Flatley, president of the Stockbridge bank, was elected chief organizer of the Stockbridge town union. Herman Rief, Dorey De Grothe and Henry Leipziet, all of the town of Stockbridge, were chosen as a committee to aid Mr. Flatley. The membership fee is one dollar a year.

Although Mr. Loehr originally organized this union to help his local neighbor farmers, news of the union has spread rapidly and requests have come from all parts of Wisconsin and other states to explain the principles of the union. Six counties in Wisconsin have held meetings of the farmers in each township. By July 1 the union plans to have the market for cheese between 20 and 30 cents.

Farmers in the vicinity of Stockbridge report that alternate freezing and thawing which took place during the past winter and spring has damaged the alfalfa, both new seedlings and old, to the extent that new seedling will have to be done in most instances. The roots of the alfalfa have been lifted out of the ground as much as three to four inches and then frost killed. Most of the farmers will be without alfalfa or hay of any kinds. Otto Ludwig, South Stockbridge farmer, is planning on sowing a new stand of alfalfa with this seedling of oats for immediate use. Oats and barley planted early and cut before the ripened stage are a good substitute for alfalfa. This plan was worked out on the Henry Pingel farm in South Stockbridge during the past winter where the grain, cut before it ripened because of sunstroke, has been fed all winter in place of the alfalfa. The cows have preferred it to the alfalfa, and when the alfalfa seedling was substituted, their milk went down in quantity. In cases where the alfalfa roots are raised out of the ground and not entirely frost killed the farmers are experimenting by rolling a heavy roller over the crop to force the roots back into the soil in the hopes that they may again take hold and grow. Winter wheat has also suffered from the same cause. Rye is the only reported to have survived the winter in this locality.

Farmers have been unable to work the land for spring seeding up to this time and are busy saving wood with the circular saw and picking stones off the land. Fred Penning, Henry Srebe, Edward Gasch and John Ecker have held wood sawing bees during the past week.

KNOW HIS RECORDS

Salt Lake City, Utah—When it comes to the record books, don't try to put anything over on Judge Nephi Jensen. Fred Bailey was arrested and brought before Judge Jensen on a charge of drunkenness. "Weren't you convicted of a liquor possession charge in this court several months ago, and didn't your wifed mother pay your fine to save you from jail?" the judge asked. Bailey denied the judge's statement. Records were produced and Bailey confessed.

BABE RUTH GETS TWO HOMERS IN 12 TO 6 VICTORY

Cardinals Down Pirates; Cubs Lose to Reds in Ninth Inning

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

FOR these many years Babe Ruth has been doing the unexpected, clouting home runs or striking out in his own inimitable fashion, but never before has he so completely dominated the opening "opening day" ceremonies.

There was excellent pitching by Ed Brandt of the Boston Braves, Sam Jones of the Chicago White Sox and Flint Rhem of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals as the National and American leagues opened the drive that leads to the 1932 pennant yesterday; there was a rousing ninth-inning rally by the re-built Cincinnati Reds and a striking demonstration of hitting power by the long-suffering Philadelphia Phillies; but over and above all these feats was the Babe's spectacular seasonal debut at Philadelphia.

The king-pin of the New York Yankees' devastating attack clouted two home runs and a single against big George Earnshaw and Jimmy Deohong of the Philadelphia Athletics and thus contributed five runs to the cause.

18,000 See Game

A shivering crowd of 18,000 saw little to cheer about as the Yankees made 12 hits to beat the A's 12-6.

Ruth, who never before had hit two runs in an opening day game, needed some assistance and got it from Sammy Byrd and Lou Gehrig. Among them this trio collected nine hits and accounted for 11 runs. Byrd and Gehrig, co-champions of the Philadelphia Athletics and thus contributed five runs to the cause.

The only other American league game the weather permitted saw the Chicago White Sox pin a 9-2 beating on the St. Louis Browns. Sam Jones held the Browns to eight hits and won without trouble in back of a 13-hit assault by the Sox. Carey Selph, rookie third sacker, drove in three runs with three doubles.

Over in the National league, the Champion Cardinals turned in an easy victory. Their two chief rivals, the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs were beaten.

Flint Rhem, who pitched the Cardinals to victory in the pennant-winning years of 1926-28-30-31, held the Pittsburgh Pirates to seven hits and won, 10-2. The Cardinals man-handled Larry French for 10 hits and eight runs in six innings.

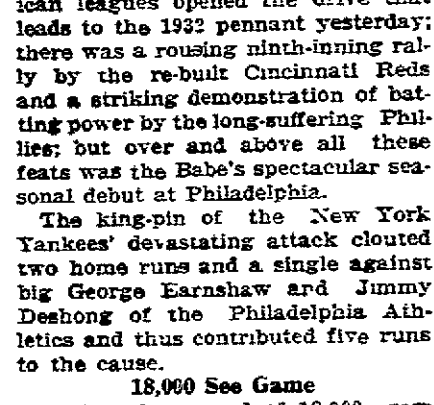

Phil's Down Giants

The Giants fell victim to the effective pitching of "Fidgety Phil" Collins and the hitting of the Phillies. They piled up a total of 17 hits for the game. Collins himself got four hits and Huck Klein contributed two.

The Cubs led Cincinnati 4-1 going into the last half of the ninth but Charley Root weakened and filled the bases with none out. Guy Bush came in to stop the attack but Red Lucas, a pinch batsman, doubled to drive in two runs and Douthett later singled to score two more and win the duel, 5-4.

Brooklyn's re-amped ball club looked good as the Dodgers' hitters folded up against the pitching of Ed Brandt and the Boston Braves won, 8-3. The Dodgers got only five hits off Brandt, two of them going to Strupp.

Bad Weather Conditions cut down the total attendance for six games to about 117,000.

POISON FOUND IN PHAR LAP'S ORGANS

San Francisco — (AP)—Government chemists announce that traces of poison were found in the organs of Phar Lap, noted Australian race horse that died last week, but the source of the poison had not been definitely established today.

The poison resembled that used in a tree spray near the thoroughbred stable at Menlo Park, it was announced by W. W. Vincent, chief food and drug administrator of the U. S. department of agriculture.

He said the poison might have come from grass coated with the spray used on oak trees on the ranch.

NEW LONDON BOXERS ON OSHKOSH CARD

Will Support Max Schmeling When Champion Shows April 25

Oshkosh—Boxing fans who journey to Oshkosh, Monday April 25, to witness Max Schmeling, heavy-weight champion of the world in action will see 26 rounds of boxing in addition to the exhibition of the German.

The regular card is headed by an eight round bout between Dick Sisk of Chicago and Frankie Hughes of Clinton, Ind. The match is at 145 pounds. Hughes, who has made a sensational climb in the welter-weight ranks in the last two years has a tough nut to crack as Sisk only last week knocked out Harry Roberts in the second round. Roberts, a few weeks ago, scored a knockout in Florida over Ray Trumble.

Appearing in six round bouts will be Winston Thomas of New London and Augie Stuber of Sheboygan; Herbie Thompson of New London and Dave Churkey of Owen and Freddy Tompkins of Milwaukee and Johnny Hughes of Clinton. Tompkins and Hughes will take second position on the regular card.

Through the cooperation of city officials the vocational board granted permission to hold the bout in the Recreation gymnasium. It will be possible to accommodate 2,500. Promoters have reported that one third of the available tickets have already been sold.

Badger Gridders Hold First Spring Drills

MADISON — A group of some eighty men, out of which the University of Wisconsin's 1932 football squad will be picked next fall, faced Dr. Clarence W. Spears, new Wisconsin coach, for a few minutes on historic Camp Randall practice field this afternoon, and then enthusiastically set to work in the first of their spring training drills.

Faced with a stiff schedule of games next fall, with Marquette University's veteran team invading Camp Randall stadium for the opener, on Oct. 1, the larger Badger squad—one of the largest ever to report for spring practice in university history—lost no time in going through the setting-up exercises of which the first training period consisted.

Just Master Spears' Styles

Training during the first few days will consist almost entirely of these exercises, in order to get the men limbered up and in shape to begin drilling on football fundamentals. Just how long the spring training period will be continued has not yet been determined, but Coach Spears has made it plain that the fundamentals of his style of play must be thoroughly mastered this spring by the candidates, so that when they report again for practice next September, the training can consist almost exclusively of learning plays and mastering the fine points in executing them.

Among the 80 men who went through the training exercises in clock-like fashion Wednesday were 17 veterans from last fall's gridiron campaign. In addition to these 17 major "W" winners of last year, there were two other letter men from previous squads, while the remainder of the group was made up of varsity reserves and members of last fall's freshmen and "B" teams.

Faced with the biggest losses in the line but with practically all of last year's regular backfield men returning, Coach Spears will probably have average Wisconsin material from which to build his first Badger team. Line men lost for next year by graduation were Kenneth (Boss) Kruger and Doug Simmons, centers; Capt. Harold Smith, right tackle; Mark Catlin, right end; Ward Stock, who played in most games last fall at guard or tackle. Russ Rehboitz, flashy back of last year, is also lost for next fall.

Schneller Drills

Experienced regulars who were out on the field Wednesday for the first drills included: Haworth, Thurman, and Begal, ends; Bratton, Molinaro, and Tobias, freshmen; Capt. Kabat and Edwards, guards; Sorrell, Goldenberg, Linton, McGuire, Schiller, Smith, and Strain, backs; Other veteran backs, including Cuthbert, Pacetti, and Levinson, are now in training for track and baseball, but will be available next fall, if not ineligible.

In addition to last fall's regulars, this spring's squad also includes several veterans from previous squads, along with some promising material from last year's freshmen squads. The veterans are Harold Smith, the captain of last year's team, the plunging fullback of the 1930 team who is back in school, and Dave Tobias, guard and tackle of 1931. Ray Davis, a former freshman star of 1930, was also in uniform for the drills. All of these men will lend strength to the team when the tough campaign of next fall opens.

CAREY SELPH HERO OF WHITE SOX WIN

Country Boy Who Didn't Want to Come to City Is Happy Now

Chicago — (AP)— Carey Selph, who wanted to be just a country boy, thought the city was a pretty good place after all today.

When the White Sox exercised their option as the last place team in the American League last fall to step in and draft the lone home Texan, Selph calmly announced that he preferred to be just a country boy and stay away from the big cities. He returned to his insurance business in Texas but soon heard the call to baseball and joined the White Sox in training at Mineral Springs, Tex.

Yesterday, he made his debut at Comiskey park and stole the inaugural home show. All he did was to drive out three doubles, blast three runs home and score another himself as Sam Jones pitched the White Sox to a 9 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns, their first home inaugural victory since way back when.

"I'm glad I came," Selph said with a grin.

Older Boy Teams

Green Bay Older Boy teams evened matters with Appleton Older Boy teams here last night when they copped two close games. Last week the Appleton quintets invaded Green Bay and defeated two squads in that order.

Sammy Ornstien's Specials did a lot of wild passing and shooting and took a winning from the Presbyterian church. The Specials led at the half, 7 and 5, but succumbed in the last half and lost the game by a score of 19 and 18.

In the other game last night the Pette's were forced into an overtime with the Fort Howards of Green Bay and lost 21 and 19. Play in the first half was even and the period ended 7 and 7.

With two minutes of play remaining the Pette's found themselves in front 17 and 9. Then the Forts stepped out, counted four baskets in rapid order and tied up the game. In the overtime Welton got a free throw for the Pette's but the Bays collected a free toss and a basket.

Duluth, Minn.— Billy Light, St. Paul, outpointed Angelo Puglisi, Duluth, 6.

INDIANAPOLIS AND LOUISVILLE WIN ASSOCIATION GAMES

Milwaukee-Toledo, Kansas City-Columbus Tilts Are Snowed Out

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO — (AP)— The first offensive along the American association baseball front has resulted in two-play knockouts for eastern clubs.

As snowy, wintry blasts stepped in to halt the Milwaukee-Toledo, Kansas City-Columbus inaugurations yesterday, Louisville and Indianapolis dashed off to a running start in the long flag chase by capturing a pair of mid-season thrillers from the Twin City entries, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Both the victories were gained by one run and both saw the winners come back like champions in the closing stages of the struggles to snatch victory. Indianapolis clinched triumph in the twelfth inning with two out, 4 to 3, and Louisville turned the defending champions, 5 to 4.

Games Well Played

For inaugurations and considering the chilly blasts that swept the playing fields, both games were well played with the pitchers holding better than their own. Only one home run was hammered out, Dudley Brannon, Louisville first baseman, clouting one in his first appearance as the plate, while the grand total batting average of the four starting teams stood at only .264, a remarkable pitching record for spring baseball. Only four errors were made all day as 49 assists were recorded in the freezing temperatures.

Minneapolis took the lead against the Indians in their grand opening at the Indianapolis Stadium by splashing over two runs in the sixth inning and one in the seventh on hits by Gansel and Mowry but the Indians clumped back into the ball game by losing the battle into a deadlock with three runs in the eighth on hits by Riddle and Bedore, a long fly by Goldman, a triple by Purdy and McCann's triple. Hais ended the tussle in the twelfth by sending Purdy home with a single. Petty and Ryan of the Millers were combed for 10 hits while Campbell and Conney allowed but eight. Five thousand, including President Thomas J. Hickey, watched the game.

Colonels Come Back

The Louisville St. Paul game saw the Colonels step out with a three run lead after two innings, the Saints in front, 4 to 3, at the sixth and the Colonels coming back to clinch their victory with a run cluster in the eighth. "Slim" Hays, veteran St. Paul hurler, out-pitched Ken Penner, but the latter had a charmed life for the day, crawling out of several tight spots. A crowd of 6,350 saw the battle.

Sicking of Minneapolis and Purdy of Indianapolis were the hitting stars of the day with three hits each in five journeys to the plate.

LA COSTE WOULD BE A GOLF CHAMPION

Reveals He Has No Intention of Resuming Net Competition

Paris — (AP)— The French amateur gold championship and a few international titles now are the ambitions of Rene LaCoste, forced by ill health to step out of tennis play.

LaCoste revealed this recently when Jean Borotra returned from his unsuccessful defense, in New York, of his American indoor title and announced he was through with Davis cup competition.

The placid LaCoste thus was forced into a statement, made in the presence of his wife, the former Simone de la Chaumne, France's premier feminine golfer.

"I am not going to play in the challenge round," said Rene. "I have given up tennis practice. I am concentrating on golf. That is my only ambition."

The ex-tennis champion plays a daily round with his wife who is showing him the fine points of the game.

He will again captain the French Davis cup team from the sidelines. In the event that Borotra really intends to retire then LaCoste will name Marcel Bernard to the team.

AUSTRALIA BOXER SIGNS WITH SHADE

Chicago — (AP)— Jack Kilbourne, middleweight champion of Australia, victorious in his four starts since invading America, signed today to box Dave Shade in a ten round bout at the White City arena, April 21.

Haakon Hansen, Norwegian middleweight, whom Kilbourne knocked out in a round Monday night, will return to Oslo, Norway, April 27 for a year's rest.

Des Moines, Ia.—Cowboy Eddie Anderson, Casper, Wyo., outpointed Tony Ligouri (10).

K. OF C. BOWLERS TO DINE MONDAY NIGHT

Knights of Columbus bowlers will hold their annual bowling banquet Monday evening at Hotel Northern, according to announcement by Larry Schaefer. The past season's experiences will be recounted, prizes will be awarded winners of honors in league play and in state tournament competition.

Did You Know That —

Harry Sawyer had 3 pitouts and three assists in a single W. I. league game back in 1911. The game went 19 innings and the count was three all when the bays decided to give up and go home.

That Percy Clapp, Lawrence football coach, once played a clarinet for John Philip Sousa, the famous band master. Percy was a member of Sousa's great navy band during the war and did a lot of campaigning in Liberty Loan drives.

Imagine Percy walking down the street on the business end of a clarinet.

That Walker Cochran played billiards in Appleton in 1914.

P.G.A. Planning Schools For Golf Professionals

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS

CHICAGO — (CPA)— Professional golfers are going back to school in plans of the Professional Golfers' Association material in an effort to systematize instruction and enable the professional to give better and a more complete service to his club. It is the thought of Charles W. Hall, of Birmingham, Ala., president of the P. G. A. to inaugurate sectional schools for both old and young professionals alike.

In these schools the professional would be given instruction in all phases of club making, greens keeping, shop management and the important of teaching the club golfer how better to play the game.

It is the thought of several members of the P. G. A. executive committee that the art of club making and preparing is rapidly becoming lost in this era of machine made clubs. In the P. G. A. schools the professional will be taught how to make a club from the sole to the tip and also how best to repair and adjust clubs for club members. Club making is used to be one of the most important items in the day's work for a professional but the general popularity of steel shafted clubs has rather reduced the importance of the art.

The inclusion of greens keeping in the professional schools does not mean the P. G. A. will endeavor to bring back the days of the professional greenskeeper. It is intended solely to acquaint the professional with the modern science of greenskeeping so he will have a broad knowledge of how to condition a course and in order that he may discuss course maintenance intelligently with the greens committee of his club.

13 TENNIS MATCHES FOR ORANGE SQUAD

Will Open Saturday With Neenah at Neenah; Play Vike Frosh

Two more tennis matches, making a total of 13 for the season, have been scheduled for Appleton high school tennis team by Coach Kenneth Laird. The most recently carded matches are with Menasha. Track this year will be a major sport at the high school and letters will be awarded. Games have been scheduled with Lawrence freshmen and Valley conference teams and a squad will be entered in the conference tournament at East Green Bay late in May.

Practices so far this spring have been limited by wet courts and cold weather. The season probably will open on Saturday when the team will clash with Neenah on Neenah's court. Members of last year's squad will be ranking members of the team the sophomores displacing them if they show ability.

The season's schedule:

April 15—Neenah at Neenah.
April 23—Oshkosh at Oshkosh.
April 26—Menasha there.
April 29—Lawrence Frosh.
May 6—Menasha here.
May 6—East Green Bay here.
May 7—Oshkosh here.
May 11—Lawrence Frosh here.
May 14—Manitowoc at Manitowoc.
May 17—East Green Bay at East.
May 20-21—State Meet at Neenah.

N. L. SOFTBALLERS WILL MEET FRIDAY

Want Last Year's Clubs and New Teams to Be Represented

National league softballers will gather at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 Friday evening according to call sent out by Eddie Stenard, league president.

All teams represented in the loop last summer have been asked to report so that league officers can be elected, details of the season worked out and the number of teams learned.

It has been reported the league will have only six teams with which to start the season unless a couple new ones make application. Reports are the Pure Moxs will not have a club and that the Bankers probably are tough.

Any new club that can qualify for entrance into the league is invited to Friday's meeting. The National league was of the Grand Forks, was city champion last year. The league is the oldest in the city.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon B. McIntyre

It Won't Be Long Now

A few more days, strong winds and warm sun and Appleton's outdoor sports will be underway.

Golfers are chaffing at the bit as they look longingly at their clubs and then at the ground hoping the winds will dry things up and the sun will start the buds and get the grass green again. And with all the talk of depression, it looks like a great season's summer.

Major League baseball got off to a start yesterday; some of the boys have been playing golf down at Green Lake. The golfers are organizing and soon the V. A. golfers will be out driving and preparing for the opening of the season May 5.

Lawrence college classes are being resumed today and with resumption of school Coach Art Denny will turn his track team loose and Coach Percy Clapp will start outdoor drills with the gridirers.

But of course most interest lies in golf. George K. Viense, professional at Butte des Morts, was in the other noon wearing a heavy overcoat, optimistic about the season and raring to go.

He kicked about the cold but said the third noon will dry up. Butte des Morts, a 1912 state three ball champion, Jack Taylor has rolled the greens and hinted that a couple warm, wind gusts would bring the welcome signal.

Did You Know That —

Harry Sawyer had 3 pitouts and three assists in a single W. I. league game back in 1911. The game went 19 innings and the count was three all when the bays decided to give up and go home.

That Percy Clapp, Lawrence football coach, once played a clarinet for John Philip Sousa, the famous band master. Percy was a member of Sousa's great navy band during the war and did a lot of campaigning in Liberty Loan drives.

Imagine Percy walking down the street on the business end of a clarinet.

That Walker Cochran played billiards in Appleton in 1914.

Chapter 27
THREE PINK ROSEBUDS
TOLD DI we could get along without her. She had some thing else on this afternoon," Marge had explained casually.
She had produced a long list of names. "Your mother made it out, Gar. I ran into her at the Century Club yesterday and she asked me if she could help us. Wasn't that dear of her when she's so busy? She said a lot of nice things about what we're doing. She's going to give a theater party the first night. That'll make splendid publicity. Oh, speaking of publicity—I'm going to ask the Times to send that Dorcas Taber over to get a feature story of the whole thing. I'll run well—all about the theater and who's really back of it and who's in the first cast and Somerset and everything."
"Good idea!" Gar had responded promptly. But he had been thinking how stunning Marge looked in the thing she was wearing; whatever it was. She looked like the favorite in a harem; he had played with that fancy while Marge was talking.
He had been lounging comfortably against the rose damask cushions of the divan, his feet stretched out toward the fire.
"I've got to do something about Somerset, Gar," she had said slowly. "Hell—well, he's taking too much for granted. But I can't offend him. Just now, I wish you'd sort of stick around. If you'd go to the rehearsal—"
"The big bouncer? Why didn't you say something about it before? You bet I'll stick 'round. He has his nerve!"
Marge had sighed faintly. Her hand had reached out and tucked itself under Gar's arm. He was always completely at home in Marge's sitting room, pleasantly conscious of its luxury, of its seclusion, of the privilege that was his in so enjoying it.
She had told him of the progress the Players were making. The costumes had been ordered from New York. He must see what Gordon Wing was doing with the back drop for the first act—it was perfect. Her low voice had run on and on from one thing to another, while Gar had listened and watched the little play of muscles under the fine skin of her throat.
"Gar, I had a wonderful talk with your mother, about you. Of course she'd say things to me that she wouldn't say to anyone else because she knows what friends you and I have been. She was so sweet I just opened my heart to her. I told her—well, I'm not going to tell you what I told her. You would have guessed it a long time ago except that you're so blind—"
"You're going to tell me, Marge?" Gar had asserted masterfully. "Shoot."
She had shaken her head; she had leaned a little closer to his shoulder, her face bent away from him. When she answered there had been a suggestion of tears in her faltering voice.
"But there isn't any use, now. You've married Kitty. And you've spoiled me for anyone else. It's always been like that—that's the way I felt last winter when I came out. I didn't give a hang about any of the parties when you weren't going to be there. Oh—"
"I hate everything now! I'm sick of the crowd, off all this fuss over the theater. I'm going away from Winton this spring and I'm never coming back. I think I'll live in Paris all the rest of my life. Will you miss me, Gar?"
Gar had been touched by her confession, flattered. I'll go after you and bring you back," he had answered quickly, vehemently. He had put his arm about her shoulder and kissed her. "Gosh, Marge. I'd miss you a lot! You can't go away!"
"Would you?" she had whispered against his arm.
He had straightened, smiling down at her.
"To prove—what? I think of you I sent you some flowers to-day—"
"Oh! Seely told me there were flowers—I haven't opened the box! I thought they were from Somerset. How dear of you, Gar!"
"I didn't put in a card. I wanted to see if you remembered our old nonsense. The three pink rosebuds—"
"Gar! How cute—that you remember. I—love—you. It wasn't nonsense last winter, Gar!" Then she had drawn quickly away from him, pulled a cord that released a bright circle of light from a lamp at the end of the divan. She had flung back her shoulders, dramatically. "We're crazy, Gar, talking like this—"
A clock somewhere had chimed seven.
"Good gracious, I didn't dream it was so late!" Gar had sprung to his feet. "I've got to beat it. You can depend on me, Marge—about Somerset. And forget that going away stuff!"
"Thanks, Gar." Her voice had been sweet, a little plaintive.
Driving home Gar had frowned heavily, thinking of Somerset's presuming on any intimacy with Marge ago. He was all chivalry, all affection for Marge. What if she did go away to live in Paris?
But he had forgotten that alarm when he reached home. Kitty and her eager hungry embrace had met him at the door.
"You're going to wear your corsage, aren't you?"
"Of course. It's in the ice-box. It's lovely, Gar."
"Do I look all right?"
"Beautiful. You're getting class, Kit. What are you doing? What beauty parlor are you going to? First thing I know I'll see your picture on some ad for cold cream or powder."
Kitty laughed lightly. Gar's easy praise was intoxicating to her; she needed no new dress, she needed no artificial color on cheeks or lips. She brought the corsage to him to pin on to her shoulder.
"The devil," Gar cried, laughing suddenly. "That isn't what I ordered for you—those three pink rosebuds. I told that fellow I wanted orchids."
"But I love these, Gar. And orchids are so frightfully expensive!"
Gar laughed again. "Not when I'm sending them to you."
They met the others at the Rainbow Gardens. They went there frequently: the head waiter always greeted them with particular concern that they should have the table they wanted. Often Kitty, following Gar into the crowd, thought of Josie, looked for her among the dancers and at the tables. She told Tubby much about Josie, and Tubby had laughed with her, but not at Josie, and she had liked him better for that.
There were to be ten of them to-night, at a long table. Diana came with Buck Sewall. Red came alone, Tubby with Isabel Peters. They joined them. Tubby took the chair next to Kitty and began whispering in her ear.
"Say, you look out of sight to-night."
"Tubby, this old dress. You see me in it every time I go anywhere!"
"I thought it was a new one, honest."
"You're silly."
But she warmed to his nonsense. Tubby amused her with his devotion, his clumsy humor. She felt at ease with him. With the others, at times like this, it was like playing a part in a play, the role of which she knew well, now.
Gar was at the other end of the table. He had kept the chair next to him empty. He was watching the door. Presently he sprang to his feet. "Here's Marge!"
Marge approached the table with Paul Somerset. The others hailed her coming a little boisterously.
"It was Gar, not Somerset," she took Marge's evening coat from her shoulders. "Sit here," he commanded, indicating the unoccupied chair next to him. It left one for Somerset across the table. "I'm on the job," he added in a low tone.
Marge tilted a deeply reproachful look to him as she slipped into the seat he had saved for her. Her fingers were significantly to the table and met Kitty's wide startled glance fixed on her. She laughed softly, her lips scarcely parting over the sound.
At the end of the table Tubby was deep in a story which he was pouring into Kitty's ear. All at once he became aware that she was not listening. He thought she spoke. "What'd you say, Kitty?"
She turned back to him, her eyes blue-black, a heightened color on her cheeks. "Did I say anything? If I did—it was only that it was just silly, thinking it for a moment—"
"But what I'm telling you is so-called 'truth, Kit! It happened—to a fellow I know!"

Christmas eve brings Kitty a present of tragedy, tomorrow.

AIR RATES DOWN

PROSECUTION IS NEARING CLOSE OF HONOR TRIAL

Neighbors of Mrs. Fortescue Called to Testify on Events at Home

Honolulu (AP)—Relying upon the eyes and ears of Mrs. Granville Fortescue's neighbors for the final phase of its case, the territory set out today to complete its web of circumstantial evidence against the society woman and three men of the navy accused of lynching Joseph Kahahawai.

Three of the eleven remaining prosecution witnesses were called to tell what they saw and heard at the Fortescue home Jan. 8, the day Kahahawai was abducted and slain.

By a procession of witnesses, most of them police officers, the prosecution yesterday carried its story from the point where the body was found to the darkened home of the accused woman, where the killing allegedly took place.

Mrs. Fortescue sat through the session apparently unmoved, even when the blood-stained sheets that had shrouded Kahahawai's body were unfolded and waved before the jurors of widely varied racial origin. Occasionally she glanced at Clarence Darrow, leader of the defense, but most of the time she kept her gaze on the back of a chair immediately in front of her.

On today's list of prosecution witnesses was Mrs. Shizuko Yamamoto, who lived next door to the Fortescue home. The prosecution expected her to tell how, while sitting alone, she saw Mrs. Fortescue pull down a window shade in the rear of the Fortescue home about 9:30 a. m.

Heard Pistol Shot?

Mrs. Helen Stickney, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Anne Tarleton, next door to the Fortescue home, was called to repeat her story previously told to Prosecutor John C. Kelley—that she heard what sounded like a muffled pistol shot.

Victoria Akana, a matron at the police station, was summoned to testify that she took from Mrs. Fortescue a person after the latter's arrest a strip of cloth apparently torn from a sheet. This strip fits the missing part of one of the sheets which was wrapped about Kahahawai's body.

A Japanese servant girl also was on the witness list. She previously told authorities that on the day before Kahahawai was killed, Mrs. Fortescue paid her wages and instructed her not to return until Saturday, the day after the lynching.

Officers told yesterday of the recovery of the lynching victim's body from an automobile containing three of the defendants, Mrs. Fortescue, Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie and Edward J. Lord.

A policeman testified that the sheets on a bed in the Fortescue home were missing. Another witness identified a coil of rope found in the house as identical with that wound around the sheet wrapped body. Still another testified that he found a photograph of Kahahawai in a purse belonging to Mrs. Fortescue.

Patrolman Testifies

Percy Bond, a radio car patrolman, said Mrs. Fortescue had conversed with him upon his arrival at the place where the arrests were made. He said she asked if she had not met him on a Hawaiian bound steamship and he had replied negatively.

Bond testified that when he said "good work, kid," to George von Arnswald, who stopped the death car and arrested the trio, Lieutenant Massie wheeled and said:

"Are you talking to me?"

Before he could reply, Bond said, Massie shook hands with himself and said "thank you very much."

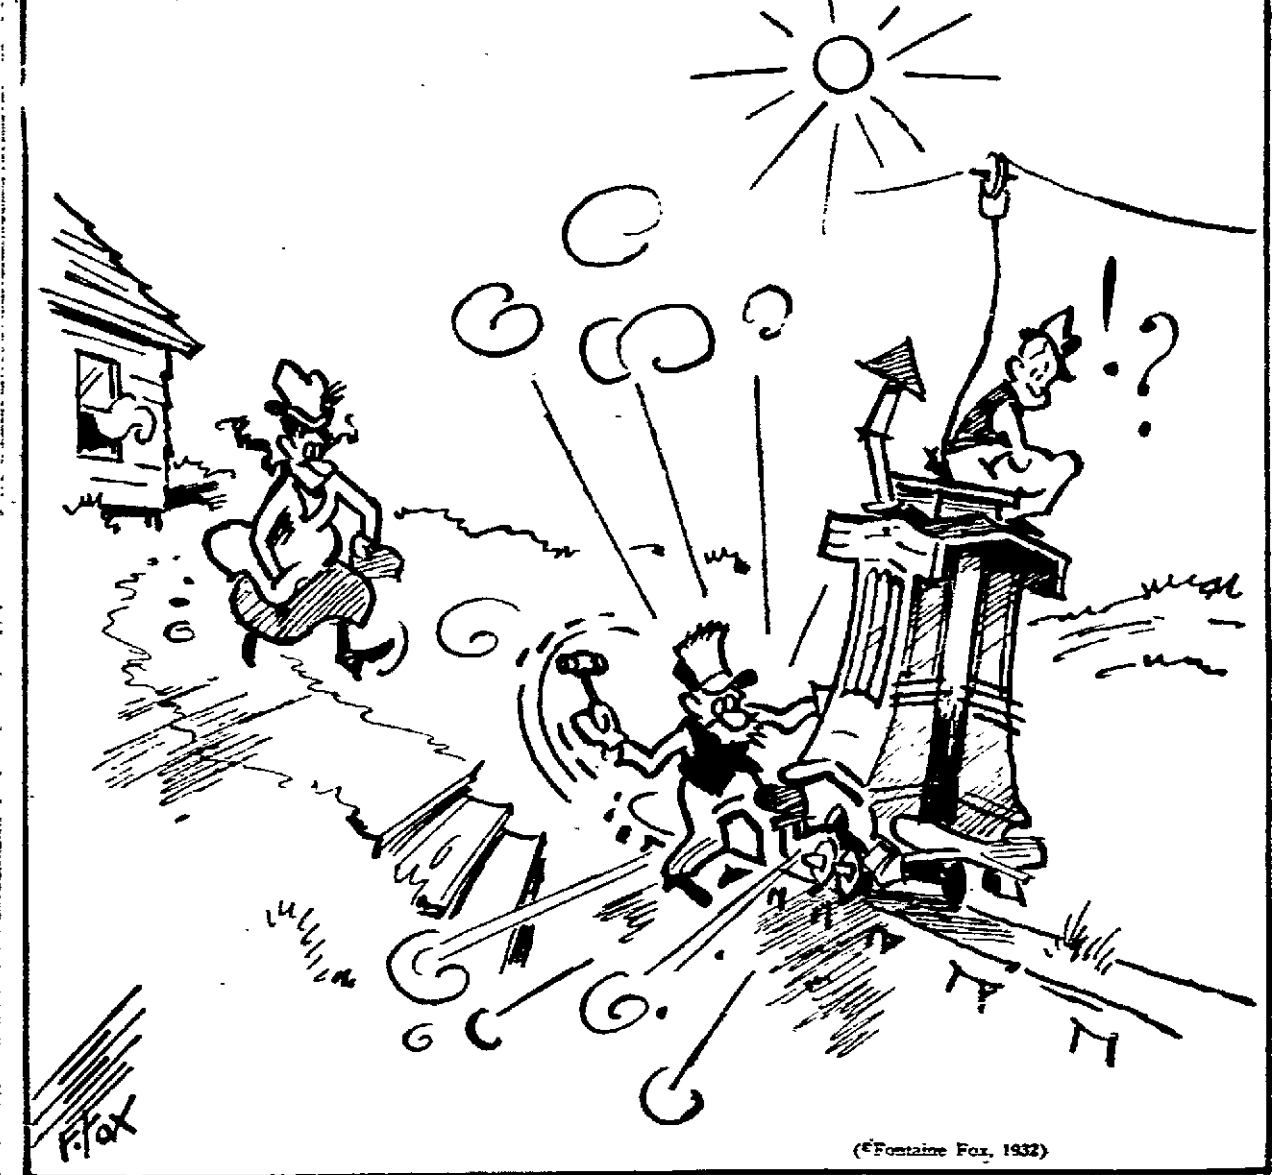

Through the Associated Press Lieutenant Massie sent a message to his mother, Mrs. W. S. Massie of Winchester, Ky. It said:

"Dearest mother—please don't worry. Have courage and everything will be all right. Love, Tommy."

Kahahawai and four other men were awaiting retrial on charges of

Many Old Movie Favorites Still Live In Hollywood

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press
Hollywood—(CPA)—If you want to know where your oldtime movie favorites are, most of 'em are still in Hollywood and still in the movies.

What's more, a majority of them continue in pictures because they would rather do this than anything else, even though they have acquired enough money and retired.

Both Florence Lawrence and Florence Turner, two of the screen's first stars, have minor roles in "Stirrers in the Sun," a picture now under production. Miss Lawrence was famous as the Biograph girl and Miss Turner as the Vitaphone girl in the days before the names of stars were used on the film.

Ellie Hall, a former popular leading lady, Clara Horton, a star of a few years ago, Helen Chadwick, Barbara Tennant, Viola Vale, and Claire McDowell all established favorites, are in pictures today.

You remember Wilfred Lucas, a D. W. Griffith star who was a leading player in "The Birth of a Nation." He is likewise around Hollywood. So are Ted Doner, musical comedy star; George Ovey, comedian; Bill Franey, Elko star; Ed Coxen, Charley West, Melbourne McDowell, Ford West and Francis Ford.

Four former directors are frequently seen in character roles, having attacked Mrs. Massie, daughter of Mrs. Fortescue, when the killing occurred.

"She is a game girl," Lieutenant Massie said, referring to his wife. "She is bearing up under it fine."

Germany, with 60 motor-rail cars on regular schedules in the country, is looking to this new phase of railway operation for further advances in the speed of its express trains.

They are Frank Beal, Edward J. LeSaint, Phillips Smalley and Jerome Storm.

Grace Cunard, though she is said to have a fortune earned when a star, refuses to give up screen work. For the joy of it, she accepts many roles even though they may not be important.

And among the favorites whom you see lunching here and there in town and some of whom you see in the movies, too, are Theda Bara, Florence Vidor, Clara Kimball Young, Emilie Chautard, Emma Dunn and Helen Jerome Eddy.

RAIL COUNSEL DIES IN FALL

J. A. Mobley of Missouri Pacific Plunges from Hotel Window

New York (AP)—John A. Mobley of Houston, Texas, general counsel for the Missouri Pacific railroad, was killed early today when he fell or jumped from a ninth floor window of the Hotel Pennsylvania. The body was found on the roof of a two-story extension.

Mobley, who was about 55, lived at 335 Lovett-blvd in Houston. He was a member of the law firm of Andrews, Streetman, Logue and Mobley with offices in Houston.

He registered at the hotel at 6:50 last night with a friend, John H. Shary of Mission, Texas, who took an adjoining room. The two men, Shary said, visited at a local club last night, returning to the hotel early today.

Both returned to their rooms, and Shary was in bed when informed of Mobley's death, which occurred about 3 a. m. He said his friend had seemed in good spirits.

The body was clad only in underwear when found. At the direction of the medical examiner it was removed to a police station.

Shary said Mobley had planned to leave for Washington this morning for a business appointment. Police did not list the case as a suicide, the record reading "fell or jumped."

Mobley is survived by two sons, both of them attorneys in Houston. After Mobley had retired he was seized by a violent fit of coughing, Shary said. The latter went to the attorney's room and remained with him until the coughing had ceased.

Later the attorney's friend went back to his own room and retired. The first inkling of the tragedy came when an employee of the hotel heard an impact on the roof of the extension, which houses the hotel baths.

The employee investigated, found the body, and notified Dr. Champlaine, hotel physician. The attorney was lifeless when the physician reached him.

FARM HOUSE IS RAZED BY FIRE; LOSS IS $5,500

Firemen Unable to Save
Building When Water Supply Fails

Kaukauna—Fire, starting from spontaneous combustion in the attic of the Golden Bros. farm residence on route 4, caused damage of more than $5,500 Tuesday noon. The blaze was battled by the Kaukauna, Wrightstown, and Forest Junction fire departments until the supply of water from a cistern was exhausted. All of the house furniture was saved. Firemen were unable to cope with the blaze after the supply of water had been used up, although the Kaukauna fire department poured 165 gallons of chemical on the blaze. While the firemen were able to save the other farm buildings and furniture the house could have been saved had they found another source of water supply.

SOCIAL ITEMS

Kaukauna—Miss Catherine Grissman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Grissman, 313 W. Seventh-st., was married to George Hartjes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hartjes, Combined Locks, in St. Mary's church at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning at a high mass by Rev. Joseph Schaefer. Attendants were Herman Grissman, brother of the bride, and Miss Elizabeth Hartjes, sister of the bride groom. A dinner and supper was served at the home of the bride's parents. ADVISES PASTURES OF SWEET CLOVER FOR COUNTY FARMS

Crop Helps Cows Survive
Hot and Dry Periods During Summer

BY W. F. WINSEY

One of the largest sweet clover pasture dairymen of Outagamie-co is Walter Wiekert, proprietor of Wiekert farms, route 4, Appleton. Each year Mr. Wiekert provides his 65 purebred Holstein cattle, hogs and horses with 35 acres of sweet clover pasture. Despite dry weather and droughts his farm animals are never short of pasture and his cows are able to expend all their energy in milk production.

There are hundreds of farmers in Brown and Outagamie-cos who furnish their cattle with sweet clover pasture each year but there are thousands who are almost starving their cattle on June grass and timothy, excepting in May, during dry weather and droughts.

It is easy raising sweet clover. In fact a farmer cannot stop raising that kind of pasture after he gets started. Sweet clover will grow in any kind of soil with the exception of that in swamps or under water parts of the year.

A good method of raising sweet clover involves the choosing a promising field for the crop, selecting the best variety of seed, inoculating the seed, sowing the seed in a well made seed bed, using a nurse crop of peas, barley or oats, sowing the sweet clover clear and not in a mixture with timothy or other clovers, starting to pasture the sweet clover the spring following the seeding when the crop is about 8 inches tall, keeping the cattle on the sweet clover night and day, and adopting a good rotation of crops.

Because they are covered with leaves and are of short growth, the Albotrea, and yellow blossom are good varieties of seed to select. These varieties do not grow as rank as the white blossom and are not as apt to get the start of the cattle. More leaves and smaller stems than are found on the white blossom,

COMMON COUNCIL TO MEET NEXT TUESDAY

Kaukauna—The next meeting of the common council will be held in the municipal building at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, April 19. A report of the city treasurer will be submitted for approval. Included in the report will be March receipts and expenditures.

POLICE GIVE LODGING TO 21 LAST NIGHT

Kaukauna—Tuesday evening marked a record for April with 21 lodgers at the police station. The number of lodgers at the station had been slowly dwindling with the advent of warmer weather. Little trouble is experienced with the transients, although a few complaints have been received.

make the Albotrea or the yellow blossom the better, growers say.

If the seed is inoculated the sweet clover will draw larger quantities of nitrogen from the air and store the surplus in the roots. This surplus nitrogen is a valuable fertilizer for crops following the sweet clover. For these reasons beginners should not fail to inoculate their seed.

Sow At Even Depths

Sowing the seed at an even depth in a well prepared seed bed prevents waste of seed by planting too deeply or under lumps of dirt or in air spaces, and produces good stands.

Sweet clover seed should not be planted in a mixture of timothy and other clovers for the reason that if the sweet clover is so planted, herds will spend their time digging out the timothy and red clover roots and will not touch the sweet clover.

Several farmers who sowed mixtures the past two summers were forced to cut the sweet clover. The cows then ate the hay where it lay on the ground and finally got started at the second crop of sweet clover coming up through the hay. All this trouble may be avoided by sowing the sweet clover seed clear, turning the cattle into the field when the feed is about 8 inches tall and keeping the cows in the field night and day except at milking time. Night and day pasture of various kinds do not work out well as cows go hungry waiting to be driven in their choice of pasture. After cows become accustomed to sweet clover pasture they prefer it.

With Nurse Crop

By sowing sweet clover seed at the time the seed of the nurse crop is sown, a farmer gets a supply of sweet clover hay, all cut up of course in his straw stack that is more valuable as feed for dairy cattle than is the nurse crop. On account of the difficulty of cutting a heavy growth of sweet clover in the nurse crop, some growers sow the sweet clover seed when the nurse crop is a foot or more tall. This plan almost eliminates all signs of the sweet clover at harvesting time and also loads of sweet clover hay in the winter straw stack. A ton or more of sweet clover hay per acre in a straw stack last winter and this spring would have in number of cases prevented a feed shortage and is always handy where cattle have access to straw stacks.

A good sweet clover rotation to adopt consists of small grain, sweet clover, corn.
